Mexico's Danger Men, Women, Their Romances For the Discouraged No Baby Kissing

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

MEXICO FACES the danger of religious civil war. Civil war is the worst kind of war, and religious war is the worst kind of civil war.

Late news from Mexico predicts that Calles, in spite of a constitution forbidding two successive presidential terms, will remain in power.

In control of the army, he can do anything, and constitutions are only made of paper—easily changed. He probably believes that Mexico's welfare demands that he continue, and he may be right.

New York's Bureau of Social Hygiene, including John D. Rockefeller, Jr., among its directors, supplies information on the romances of 100 men and 100 women, all married but not to each other.

The 100 men had had 681 love affairs, the 100 women had had 677. Most of them happened before marriage.

Twenty-nine husbands and forty-one wives continued their "romances" after they were married. Men's love affairs begin to die out, usually, at about 30.

Women start all over again after 40.

The New York statistics confirm Mitchnikoff's statement that older women are often unhappy because they become really interested in romance when husbands of their own age get tired of it.

Plato and other Greeks had a plan to arrange that, but even our free and easy age would not tolerate it.

Helen Keller was born blind and deaf. In infancy she could not hear, see or speak. She speaks, reads by her finger tips, "hears" what others say by putting her fingers on their lips.

Morris R. Dougherty, with no legs and only one arm, runs his airplane unaided, and plans a flight to Europe.

There are lessons for those discouraged by what they call "lack of opportunity."

Mr. Hoover, kindly but firmly, says: "I shall kiss no baby for publication." That is wise, and kind to the babies.

No intelligent mother allows ANYBODY to kiss her baby. All adults carry in their mouths disease germs, harmless to the carriers, but dangerous to an infant in whom the protecting white corpuscles are undeveloped.

Mr. Hoover did, however, hold the baby while it's elder brother took a photograph. He likes babies.

Secretary Kellogg says every nation can sign the world peace pact, therefore Russia can sign. This country does not recognize the bolshevik government in existence, but a way will be found to let the Russians in, perhaps.

That will please Europe, Germany especially. Living next to the Big Bear, and knowing how revolution stimulates a nation's power, for a while, at least, the Germans want a satisfied Russia.

Scientists are aroused by the new cancer "discovery," advancing the supposition that there is a substance or "fermentation" within the body that promotes tumor growth.

It is hoped that some other substance, or "ferment" may be found to PREVENT such growth.

Some doctors suggest an all vegetable diet to prevent cancer.

In a certain monastery, where no meat is ever eaten, none of the monks has cancer. On the other hand, among savages on a meat diet, no savage has cancer.

It would be interesting to hear from tribes within the Arctic and Antartic circles that eat meat and fat only.

SLAIN WOMAN FEARED ONE WITH WHOM SHE QUARRELED OVER WIRE

Police today started a checkup of a series of telephone quarrels between Mrs. Carrie Galdi, 62-year-old widow killed in her home at 90 Webster st., East Boston, and a woman that Mrs. Galdi feared.

This and a search for the death gun sent the investigators into dozens of homes in a search for clues. Nearly a score of neighbors were questioned by police.

The woman was shot in the back as she sat near the kitchen window in her home.

Inspector James Dennessey of the Homicide Bureau suspects the assassin used a silencer on the small calibre pistol which was the

THE O'DONNELLS WIN! 'O' TO STAY IN NAME

Because of "too much opposition," Vincent A. O'Donnell of Boston and Newton has decided to drop his legal effort to change his name to Vincent Astor Donnell.

"I am going to drop the matter," said O'Donnell.

"For what reason?"

"Oh, because of so much opposition," replied O'Donnell.

The "opposition" of which he spoke comes from his own mother, his brother, John Francis O'Donnell, Newton patrolman; his brother, Lawrence O'Donnell, Newton motorcycle officer, and Vincent Astor, wealthy New Yorker.

"I shall drop the petition to have my name changed because it is causing too much controversy," said O'Donnell.

"As far as the Astor part is concerned, Vincent Astor, the New York millionaire, can take his name and drop it into the Hudson river.

"I do not want the name 'Astor' if it is not mine, but I've been called 'Astor' for many years, enlisted in the World War under that name, was married under that name, and I think I was confirmed in church under that name. I am looking up church records now to find out.

"Everybody is making a big joke about this, but it's no joke to me. I wanted my name changed for good neat reasons.

"Heraldry experts will tell you that the name O'Donnell is not a real Irish name. The old Irish name was spelled 'Donal.' Later people put the 'o' on it and I've been trying to take it off for business reasons. However, such a fuss has been made that I'll drop the petition."

DONAHUE LIKELY CHOICE TO SUCCEED M'GLUE

Election of J. Frank Donahue, member of the Industrial Accident Board and former Secretary of State under Governor Walsh, as chairman of the Democratic State committee, seemed assured today shortly before the meeting scheduled for this afternoon.

It was learned that sentiment among leading Democrats had virtually crystallized in favor of Donahue, although some opposition, including that of former Chairman Charles H. McGlue, who resigned at a very stormy meeting last week, is expected.

The meeting will take place at Myers Hall, Tremont Temple, and no effort will be made to prevent outsiders from participating. Many Democrats believe that the trouble at last week's meeting, presided over by Mrs. Colin MacDonald, was caused by persons not duly accredited members of the committee.

The reports that Senator Walsh would take an active part in the selection of a new chairman appeared to be unfounded, as he was still at Battle Creek, Mich., getting in condition for the coming campaign.

ELLEN TERRY, FAMOUS ACTRESS, DIES AT 80

Small Hythe, Kent, Eng., July 21 (AP)—Dame Ellen Terry, British actress, beloved by playgoers the world over, died early today in the little oaken farmhouse tucked away in the vales of Kent, where she had quietly spent the last years of her life.

She passed away peacefully, surrounded by her children and grandchildren. Her death marked the final period of her hopeless struggle against a combination heart attack and cerebral hemorrhage, from which she had been sinking slowly since Tuesday.

A few days ago, with the end approaching, she gave the Associated Press this message for America:

Give my love to America, and tell my dear friends that I am thinking of them as I rest here in my quiet

Official $50,000 Short

New Bedford, July 21—A shortage of nearly $50,000 was found in the books of a former Westport town official, it was learned today, on completion of a six weeks' audit.

The audit was conducted under the direction of Theodore N. Waddell, State Commissioner of Accounts. He stated he would make announcement of the exact shortage Tuesday.

At the State House the office of the division of accounts admitted there was considerable shortage in the accounts.

Close Call for Glider

Truro, July 21—Peter Hesselbach, champion German glider pilot, narrowly escaped death or injury today when the motorless monoplane Darmstadt, caught in a calm, came to a halt a few yards from the brink of a 150 foot embankment at Highland Light.

As the ship stopped at the top of the precipice, earth crumbled under the fuselage and slid onto the ocean below, while Summer residents of Provincetown and the Cape, many of them women, gasped with fear.

It was the third attempt on the part of Hesselbach to get into the air with the glider, the two previous efforts having failed because of lack of wind.

Because of previous delays due to unfavorable weather conditions, Hesselbach resolved to make a third attempt, and the glider was carried

3 Mishaps Tie Up 'L'

Three mishaps caused delays on the Boston Elevated system today, including motor trouble, a break in a cable and fire from a hot box.

A score of passengers left a Jamaica Pond car at Center st. and Kingsboro rd., Jamaica Plain, when smoke filled the car from the hot box. Firemen were called and extinguished the blazing waste and woodwork with a damage of $50.

Motor trouble on an outbound car in the subway stalled it between Arlington and Copley stations, causing complete cessation of service on that line for 12 minutes and slowing up traffic over the Common Watts ave. and Beacon st. routes for a much longer period.

The other tie-up was caused by the breaking of a feed cable on Oakland st. near Rugby rd., Mattapan. Trolley car service on the Mattapan-Egleston sq. line, via Blue Hill ave., and other Mattapan lines, was halted for half an hour.

Roxbury Fireman Drowns

The Reading Company of Commercial Wharf was informed by its Philadelphia representative today that William Buckley of Harrison ave., Roxbury, a fireman on a ship now in that port, was drowned at Port Richmond, Philadelphia, today.

Paris, July 21 (AP)—Samuel H. Collom, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, has reserved the right to nominate Bill Tilden for the Davis Cup challenge round despite the ineligibility ruling, and has so advised New York officials, according to reliable sources.

Paris, July 21 (INS)—Still smarting under the sting of Bill Tilden's summary dismissal from its ranks the American team today swept on into the challenge round with France by scoring its third and conclusive victory over Italy in the interzone finals of the Davis cup series.

BODENHEIM, AUTHOR IN VIRGINIA DREW'S DEATH CASE, IS IN ART COLONY

Provincetown, July 21 — Maxwell Bodenheim, poet and novelist, sought far and wide for questioning in connection with the suicide of Virginia Drew, 26-year-old commercial artist and writer, in New York, was found today by the Boston Evening American in the art colony.

Later, acting on a request from New York authorities, Chief Williams of the local police department interviewed the author to learn what his relations were with Miss Drew.

The Boston Evening American found Bodenheim at his cottage, where he had evidently spent a nervous night, the floor of the room in which he received the reporter being strewn with cigaret stubs.

Admitting that he fled from his luxurious New York apartment to avoid unpleasant publicity, he quickly denied anything more than 'helpful friendship' for the girl artist and declared he argued with her 'until 3 in the morning' to dissuade her from suicide.

Bodenheim also admitted knowing Gladys Loeb, 19, of New York, who disappeared Wednesday and whose father fears she committed suicide. He said she was 'a surface friend' whom he met at a party and coached a little in writing.

Gladys Loeb twice tried suicide while living next door to the novelist's apartment in New York, according to information received from the police there.

He denied a suicide pact with Miss Drew but said she mentioned having eaten into one with a girl friend who fell through because the friend lacked courage.

A mysterious telegram which Bodenheim was discovered to have received last night from Boston, he refused to comment upon. It read:

"Your plan a flop. Do not call Kenmore 670"

Kenmore 670 is the telephone number of Boston police headquarters.

Miss Drew's body was found

OBREGON SLAYER TO BE EXECUTED NEXT WEEK

Mexico City, July 21 (AP)—Police today were tightening the net of evidence against Jose de Leon Toral, hoping to send him before a firing squad next week for the assassination of President-Elect Alvaro Obregon.

The newspaper El Sol asserts that terror prevails in Catholic circles. This is said to be particularly true in Guadalupe, where the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint, is situated.

Catholic priests of the shrine who since the religious laws became effective has performed no services but, dressed as laymen, have continued to live in the vicinity, are said to have gone into hiding.

Some members of the Knights of Columbus, a number of priests and the secristans of the shrine are known to have been questioned by police. No word of their examination has been made public.

POET NAMED IN GIRL'S SUICIDE FOUND IN CAPE ART COLONY

HE BEGGED HER NOT TO DIE

floating in the Hudson. Although police were satisfied she committed suicide, they were unwilling to close the case until Bodenheim was quizzed on events preceding the girl's death.

Disappointment over her failure to write acceptable verse, coupled with reveries over the mystery of reincarnation, was discovered to have figured in the case, and then it was learned that the girl had talked of a suicide pact with a novelist friend.

Bodenheim, who is 25, has a wife and child now living in Paris. He is known in Greenwich Village as "the Bohemian of Bohemians," and his most successful novel caused his trial for publishing indecencies, but he was acquitted.

Impetus was given the hunt for him when it was discovered that Miss Drew was the second young girl artist of his acquaintance who had committed suicide, and in addition there was the case of Gladys Loeb.

The search was extending to Chicago and other cities ere he was found today in his cottage, "The Peggy," here.

"Yes, she was at my apartment Sunday night," he said, after he got out of bed and slipped into a lounging robe for the interview.

"She's the last person I'll ever befriend, too. I left New York to get away from any publicity in this connection and never thought you'd find me here. Still there's nothing to hide, only its mighty unpleasant.

SENT HIM VERSES

"Two or three weeks ago I first heard of Virginia Drew. I got a letter from her in which she asked me to look over some verses she had written. She wanted to know frankly if they were good or bad.

"She gave me her 'phone number in the letter and I called her up. She begged to be allowed to call at my apartment, bringing the verses, and so she came. They were not a bit artistic and I was forced to tell her so. She asked frankness.

"She left very much disappointed. Then last Sunday night she appeared again. She burst into my apartment, saying, in a most matter-of-fact tone, that she was going to kill herself because of her disappointment over my criticism of the verses and her home conditions.

"'I'm not going to carry on any longer,' was what she said. I argued with her until I was black in the face, trying to persuade her it was better to carry on, that she could give up verse and devote her talents to music, painting or something else artistic.

"I'LL AID NO MORE."

"Why, I argued with her from 8 in the evening until 8 in the morning trying to talk her out of suicide, and I thought I had succeeded. When she left, I walked her up along 45th st., and finally got her promise to go on living and make the best of things. I thought she went to a train," she was in tears.

"I went back to the hotel where my apartment is. The next day the clerk told me a man had called, flashed a badge of the secret service, said he was a brother of Miss Drew and hinted at suicide.

"I packed up and got out of town to avoid publicity. I had nothing to do with her death. Unfortunately she took my criticism to heart. She's the last I'll ever befriend."

WRITINGS REJECTED

According to Carolyn Nevotny, close friend of the dead girl, Miss Drew had completed two manuscripts on theology and reincarnation. These had been sent to a publisher and returned, unaccepted, but in telling of these failures the girl told her friend:

"I've met a literary light and he has promised to help me. I am so happy because I'm having some good luck at last."

Then, several days later, Virginia is said to have telephoned Carolyn again to say: "We've entered into a suicide pact."

Virginia had told her parents of her "literary light" and had given her mother his name only last Sunday. That was the day she was last at home.

Her father searched hospitals for three days before her body was found and identified by him.

BAY STATE MEN ARE ARRESTED IN MAINE

Portland, Me., July 21—William A. Colton of Middleton, Mass.; Lawrence E. Greenleaf of Nahant, Mass., and Ralph A. Richardson of Revere, Mass., were held in $1000 each in a liquor case when arraigned before Commissioner George F. Gould in the United States District Court here.

The three were arrested by federal agents in Kittery Thursday night when two cars were confiscated and 15 gallons of alcohol seized. Colton was driving ahead, according to the officers, and the other two were following and had the alcohol as cargo. The case goes to the grand jury in September.

NAME OF SECRETARY OF TREASURY NOW ON BILLS

Washington, July 21—For the first time in history the name of the secretary of the treasury now appears on United States currency. New bills signed by Secretary Mellon are being put in circulation.

Formerly all United States notes were signed by the treasurer of the United States or the comptroller of the currency. This practice has been abandoned.

3 BOYS CLINGING TO OVERTURNED BOAT SAVED

Gloucester, July 21—Three local boys, each 15, are recovering today from the fearful ordeal when they clung for 20 minutes to the slippery bottom of an overturned boat a half mile from shore and were finally rescued by a naval crew.

The boys are Charles and Peter Gamage, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Gamage of Eastern Point, and Archie Collins of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is stopping at an Eastern Point hotel.

How the boat tipped over they did not explain, but they said they were able to hold on to the bottom of the dory, although unable to right the boat.

With the chilly spray breaking over them, as the waves hammered the overturned craft, they had an uncomfortable time of it until they were seen by Joseph Balbach, steward of the U. S. S. Ogala.

He reported it to the officer of the deck and a boat was despatched. The boys were taken aboard the Ogala and looked over by the doctor while their clothing was dried out. They suffered no serious effects, the doctor said. The boys were put ashore by a navy boat.

HYDE PARK AUTOIST KILLS NEW YORK GIRL

West Greenwich, R. I., July 21—Mary M. Wicks, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wicks of 10114 114th st., Richmond Hill, New York, was almost instantly killed when she was struck by an automobile on the Nooseneck rd., near her family's summer home.

Sidney Cooper of 3 Dana ave., Hyde Park, Mass., operator of the machine, said it skidded on the wet road when he applied the brakes as he drew near the girl. She was with her two sisters and brother. All but she jumped to safety as the car slid toward them.

1ST CORPS OFF FOR CAPE TODAY

Boston's famous old First Corps Cadets, listed on Army records as the 211th Coast Artillery, Anti-Aircraft, M. N. G., left today for a two weeks' tour of duty at Camp Edmands, Peters Pond, Sandwich.

This is the first time in recent years that the outfit has gone into camp in its home state. Last year they trained at Fort Wright, N. Y., and during the three previous years they were in camp at Fort Terry, N. Y.

Led by their commander, Lieut. Colonel Horace Z. Landon, the 400 officers and men of the regiment left their armory in Columbus ave. shortly before nine o'clock and boarded busses for the camp.

lieman to say: "Thank God, Obregon is dead." She was promptly arrested. Many other persons are also in custody, including all members of the family of Toral, the slayer.

It was expected that a public civil trial of the slayer would be started shortly after the expiration on Monday of a writ of amparo, or injunction, restraining police and military authorities from taking any action against the slayer.

The application for the writ was dropped in a mail box by an unidentified person. It was automatically granted when the court decided to officially receive it. This action of the court is understood to have the approval of officials in charge of the case since they were anxious to avoid any hasty action.

Agrarian leaders today were demanding the punishment of those they termed the "psychological authors" of the assassination of Obregon. Otherwise, they asserted, there would be a revolution.

Fifteen hundred members of the agrarian party and of the union of revolutionary parties paraded the streets of the capital and demanded that Luis Morones, minister of labor, and other labor leaders holding minor offices in the Calles administration be dismissed. These labor leaders had opposed Gen. Obregon in his campaign for election.

Widow Collapses When Obregon Train Arrives

Nogales, Ariz., July 21 (AP)—The funeral train bringing the body of Gen. Alvaro Obregon to Navajoa, Sonora, arrived at its destination today, dispatches to the Herald here said. Senora Obregon collapsed as the train drew in. The widow of Mexico's assassinated President-elect rallied somewhat after a few moments, but was reported to be suffering from great mental stress.

The black-draped train reached Navajoa at 8 a. m., mountain time. It was definitely indicated interment would take place tomorrow at Huatabampo, birthplace of Obregon.

Mexico Uses Nero's Tactics, Asserts Vatican Organ

Rome, July 21 (AP)—Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, in an editorial today says that what is now happening in Mexico recalls what used to happen in Rome under Nero when the Christians were accused of setting fire to the city in order to be able to massacre them afterwards.

The paper stigmatizes the crime of Obregon's murderer, but protests the assertion that it was inspired by religious sentiment and rejects the accusation that the crime was instigated by the Mexican episcopacy.

WARN OF PLOT TO GET KAISER BACK TO BERLIN

Berlin, July 21 (INS)—Alleging that "a private organization of fighting monarchists" has been formed to work for the return of the former Kaiser, German republicans today requested the Dutch government to forbid the former Emperor to telegraph to his German followers. The complaint is supported by the Dutch Socialist organ Hetvolk, which demands that the Dutch government remind the ex-Kaiser he promised to refrain from politics when given a refuge in Holland.

WOMAN HUNTED AS E. BOSTON SLAYER

death weapon, though so small a gun might not have been heard in adjoining houses even if no silencer had been used.

The "woman slayer" theory grows out of the fact that a man rarely uses so small a gun when he plans so desperate a deed, police said. A man would usually prefer a pistol of larger caliber, in the opinion of the police.

There was no escape for Mrs. Galdi, according to medical experts and the police. The assassin apparently tip-toed up on the porch of the Galdi home, and then fired the bullet through the window.

One of her sons was compelled to force a door of the house when his repeated knocking failed to bring response.

Mrs. Galdi lived with her two sons. Both were away, but Arthur returned and found his mother lying face down on the kitchen floor near the sink.

Unable to arouse her he called in Dr. Enos Bowen. The doctor pronounced her dead and immediately notified Medical Examiner Magrath.

SHOT THROUGH WINDOW

Among those to be questioned is a dressmaker, said to be the last known person to see Mrs. Galdi alive. The two sons, Frank, 32 a bricklayer, and Arthur, 25, a painter, told the police they did not know of their mother being in fear of anybody.

Arthur told the police that when he left home late in the forenoon, the kitchen window, beside which his mother was evidently sitting when shot, was open and the screen was in the window.

When he got home in the afternoon the window was closed and the screen out. Later the screen was found inside the kitchen near the window and in it was found a bullet hole.

Mrs. Galdi was a large woman, weighing about 200 pounds, and was powerful for her age. Police believe she was surprised by the murderer and shot before she was aware of his presence.

Dr. Magrath will perform an autopsy today.

Beside the two sons, Mrs. Galdi had three married daughters.

5 CHILDREN GRIEVE FOR MOTHER SHOT BY MAN

Monson, July 21—Five children sob today beside a marble slab in an undertaker's establishment where Mrs. Alice R. Felton, their mother, lies dead, shot down in the street by Edward Clark, who then sent a bullet into his own brain.

The murder and suicide were enacted before a crowd leaving a theater at Main and Arke sts.

Chief of Police H. A. Aldrich said that Clark and Mrs. Felton were neighbors in their younger days at Monson.

BRIDE AND SISTER ARE MISSING

HUSBAND DISTRACTED
Joseph Cabral of Spring st., East Cambridge, has asked police to find his 18-year-old bride of less than four months, missing for a week.

PARENTS WORRIED
Twelve-year-old Emilia Villa of New Bedford, missing for a week with her older sister, Mrs. Emily Cabral of East Cambridge.

POLICE SEEK TWO MISSING SISTERS

Less than four months after becoming a bride, Emily Cabral, pretty 18-year-old brunette of 28 Spring st., East Cambridge, has disappeared from her home.

With her also went the bride's young sister, Emilia Villa, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Villa of New Bedford, who had been spending her school vacation with the Cabrals.

Joseph Cabral, the distracted husband of Emily, has appealed to the police of East Cambridge, Boston and New Bedford to try and locate the missing sisters.

Torn between fear and doubt, Cabral believes his wife's disappearance may hinge on her acquaintance with a dashing young Boston policeman, whom she admitted having met a few weeks after the wedding.

"Last Saturday Emily said she would like to visit her folks in New Bedford," said Cabral. "I gave her five dollars for train fare for herself and sister.

"The following day I went to New Bedford myself, thinking to spend the day with them. I was shocked to learn that she had not been near the home of her parents. A week has passed and neither relatives nor friends have seen or heard anything of the couple."

MOST FAMOUS VAMP
The most famous "vamp" of this day—when it comes to winning your man—is Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Her friends and victims revealing her secret, say that her allure is a compound of tact, easy, graceful poise, mystery, hauteur, knack of wearing clothes as no other woman can, and the fact that no man has really won her love.

HELEN WILLS' PROFILE BEAUTIFUL, SAYS EXPERT

New York, July 21 (AP)—One of the most beautiful profiles ever seen by an expert is that of Miss Helen Wills, Ira Hill, society photographer, returning from a honeymoon abroad with the former Doris Goodwin, was so enthusiastic he arranged for the tennis star to pose, offering to break any engagement he might have.

PERCHED ON GLOUCESTER EMINENCE

Stillington Hall, Mr. Buswell's intimate theater, is as famous architecturally and picturesquely as it is for its dramatic excellencies. Within and without every last detail has been lovingly planned and perfectly carried out, under Mr. Buswell's unceasing attention.

Leslie Buswell — Mrs. Fitz-William Sargent

RESTING BETWEEN STILLINGTON REHEARSALS

Mr. Buswell and Mrs. Sargent have leading parts in the brilliant Shaw comedy of class which is the first dramatic offering at Stillington this season, opening Monday.

DINNER DANCES STILL HOLD NAHANT SUMMER COLONISTS

RARELY DOES ANY SUPEREXCITEMENT RUFFLE THE NEIGHBORLY SUMMERTIME life that is so particularly the essence of Nahant during the warm season. Seasons come and go but the social order there changes not at all. For, lo, these several seasons, girls and matrons have sailed their swift, small, "star" boats. For just as many summers bridge has been the prime afternoon pastime. And during an equal period the entire colony has hobnobbed on Saturday evenings at the Nahant Club dinner dances.

THESE ARE AS INTRINSICALLY NAHANT as is the Henry Cabot Lodge home, and the serenity that envelops this smart, unpretentious and almost seagirt village. This evening, instead of many small groups, two extra large parties are in order at the Nahant Club, to dine and to dance and so usher in the seventh day according to Nahant ways. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Blanchard are entertaining a company of three score, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Huntington Wolcott have guests to about half that number. With such important hostesses this evening will be a summertime variant of the winter's senior Supper Dances. Many of the same folk are concerned.

MISS MARY T. SPOONER IS A BOSTONIAN whom the Social Register, in issue after issue, designates as "abroad." And since Miss Spooner is down on the passenger list to sail today on the Conte Biancamano, outbound from New York to Genoa, the latest Register, in so listing her, is not at all amiss. Miss Spooner has a Boston address, but very seldom and for not long periods is she to be found at it. An inveterate traveler, the far places of the earth are her familiar playground.

THE "WHITE COUNT," STEAMING AWAY today to the blue and tideless Mediterranean, has listed as passengers Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Child and their son, Robert C. Child, Jr. They are bound for Italy and the countries adjacent on the Continent, always dear to the heart of the European traveler, especially of a summertime. Edward A. Taft of Beacon st. is a voyager on the Conte Biancamano, going to join Mrs. Taft, who commenced her foreign sojourn some time in late May. They return this way in the autumn, along with some hundreds of other home-coming ones.

THERE ARE GARDEN PARTIES AND garden parties. At some, for instance, those staged in old England, lords and ladies bend the knee before majesties, and everything, guests and hosts, scintillates with the glitter that ever beats about a throne and its occupants. Here in New England garden parties are differently done. Here are sweet and primitive gardens, with hollyhocks all in a row and a plot of blossoms, unplanned as to effect, flaunting bright mingled colors beneath a stately elm tree or two. Sometimes there's a picket fence holding in all this sweet and informal beauty.

DOWN IN OLD NEWBURY, ANCIENT town of ancient homes, set about a village green from which rises the inevitable soaring white spire, is just such a charming place. Mrs. Morton Prince is its summer occupant. And as Mrs. Prince's pet philanthropic hobby is the Church Home Society, she uses the fresh and fragrant gardens of the first to benefit the cash box of the second. Tuesday afternoon is the time. Tea will be a feature. And invitations have gone out from ladies of the society to the ladies of St. Paul's Parish.

THE AUGUST PRESENCE OF MRS. WILLIAM LOWELL PUTNAM, of Beacon st. and Newburyport, in the role of joint hostess with Mrs. Prince, gives the garden party-tea special significance. The five who will take turns sitting behind the tea urn are Mrs. Charles B. Denny, Miss Ellen G. Todd, Mrs. Dana Atchley, Mrs. George W. Clarke and Mrs. Mary S. Burnhome. The Church Home Society has in the planning most ambitious summer and autumn programs. Affairs, at the country and in town, will go on and on to pleasurable conclusions and great financial benefit.

THE TEA WILL HAVE ITS ARTISTIC slant. Everything seems to have that, as Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., of Boston and lovely Candlewood Farm in Ipswich, is bringing over for exhibition a number of the pencil portrait likenesses of certain Church Home Society patrons. Having your pencil portrait done is a fad this summer held over from the spring, when Mrs. Burrage cleverly promulgated the scheme. Smart young girls and haughty matrons sit to a clever artist, not, of course, at the price of a Dw. Leslie portrait, but at a sum sufficient to insure a goodly return to whatever pet charity is to benefit.

MONDAY IS THE STILLINGTON HALL "opening" for "Pygmalion." At 8:30, to the dot, the rich velvet curtains will swing wide and Shaw's brilliant comedy of class commence to move in theatrical way. Other seasons and other plays presented there have led audiences to expect only perfection at Stillington. And even though company and "back stage" are today experiencing the slump all artistic beings encounter, it's a perfectly safe prediction that Monday evening's presentation will be the essence of theater smoothness.

"PYGMALION" WILL BE A STILLINGTON attraction for the entire week. And audiences will be brilliant and representative, and, of course, as enthusiastic as they always are, for Leslie Buswell's stage offerings. Mr. Buswell, as lead and the dynamic young amateur; Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent, as the cockney girl turned "lady," head a cast that should do the Shavian satirical thrusts excellently. But even though the play were a flat failure (and that is beyond thinking), Stillington Hall itself would be ample payment for a motor journey, however lengthy.

SOME OF THE NORTH SHORE'S MOST DISTINGUISHED will move through the stone cloister that is Stillington's very picturesque approach. His Excellency the German Ambassador and Frau Friedrich Wilhelm von Prittwitz und Gaffron are bringing friends, a score or so, including the brilliant world citizen, Mrs. Joseph Leiter. The Leiters have other reservations also, so there will be a fine representation of that interesting family. Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Whitman, ardent exponent of the amateur stage, will be a hostess for the Stillington opening.

THE JOHN C. ELLSWORTHS HAVE FIRST night reservations. Mrs. Charles Moore, of New York and Greenwich, will be an interested spectator, especially as in "Peter Ibbetson," to be given at Stillington in August, she will have a part. Mrs. Moore is spending some time at East Gloucester this summer, with her close friend, Mrs. Sargent. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Hall have places in the audience. So have Mrs. Howland Twombley, Mrs. Tucker Sayward and Miss Mary Robinson of Pittsburgh and Bass Rocks. Many shining motors will swish up through the park to beautiful Stillington on Monday to unload smart people for a smart "premiere."

RUSSIANS HALT NOBILE RESCUE WORK 2 WEEKS

Moscow, July 21 (INS)—Soviet relief in behalf of the ill-fated Nobile expedition, which has been responsible for nearly all the rescues so far effected, will be at a standstill for a fortnight as the result of official decisions taken today.

In the meantime there are still 12 men missing—six of them members of the Nobile party and the others members of the Amundsen relief group.

Prof. Samoylovich, director of Russian relief aboard the Krassin, wirelessed from King's Bay that it would require two weeks to make necessary repairs upon the ice breaker. As facilities at King's Bay are inadequate the Krassin will have to put in at a Norwegian or Swedish port.

Aviator Chuchnovsky was ordered to remain at King's Bay to repair his plane and not to make any attempt to locate the missing Alessandri and Amundsen parties until the Krassin returns.

Chuchnovsky desires to continue his search alone, but the members of the Soviet relief committee considered the risks too great.

Prof. Samoylovich reported that the Krassin put in at King's Bay because of the necessity to amputate one of Capt. A. Mariano's legs. It had been frozen while he and F. Zappi were marooned on an ice floe and gangrene had developed.

Prof. Samoylovich wirelessed that he wished to correct an erroneous report that had become current. He said that one of his previous radiograms had been interpreted as meaning that the Italian government declined to assist the Krassin. This interpretation, he added, was wrong as the Italians have always been ready to give all the assistance possible.

FIVE U. S. DESTROYERS AT PORTLAND FOR WEEK-END

Portland, Me., July 21 (AP)—Five U. S. naval destroyers were in the harbor here today for a week-end halt before returning to Newport, R. I., to engage in battle practice. The flotilla, consisting of the destroyers Sands, Reuben James, Sharkey and Breck had several hundred naval reservists aboard from Newark and Hoboken, N. J., and Rochester, Ducook and New Rochelle, N. Y.

IF YOU CAN SAY "IT'S ME" IT'LL BE ALL RIGHT

New Haven, July 21 (AP)—If anybody reproves you when you say "it's me" refer him to Kenyo Malone, instructor in English at Johns Hopkins. In a lecture at Yale he expressed the belief such usage is more sensible than the grammatically correct "it is I."

Story of Love Told With Soap, and 'Twas Success

Minneapolis, Minn., July 20 (AP)—Marvin Kamp, just out of high school at St. Joseph, Mo., won a bride here through love messages he wrote with soap on the windows of a downtown office building—windows he washed for a living.

Miss Dorothy Proctor worked in an office building across the street. From his window washing perch Kapp sighed her. Each day he wrote on his window—sometimes on the second floor, sometimes on the fifth—a plea for her affection.

Finally she agreed to meet him. Now she has abandoned her plan for a trip to Europe and will help see him through the University of Minnesota.

DOZEN HURT IN CAR PLUNGE

New York, July 21 (AP)—A dozen persons were injured today when the first two cars of a Long Island Railroad electric train plunged through an open drawbridge over an arm of Jamaica Bay between Broad channel and Hammel.

The first car, the smoker, with 24 passengers, was three-quarters submerged. The second car was balanced on the edge of the bridge.

The motorman, Carl Muller, who, according to reports to the railroad office, ran by a block signal, smashed a window and swam to the surface.

The bridge had been opened for the Jamaica bay tug Dynamic, whose crew rescued the motorman and several passengers.

Eight ambulances from four hospitals were despatched to the scene with police and fire reserves from every station in the borough. The injured were taken to the Far Rockaway Hospital.

Firemen who cut away part of the roof of the submerger car reported every passenged had escaped.

HUNGARY PUTS AN END TO GYPSY ROAMINGS

Budapest, July 21 (AP)—Gypsies of Hungary today bewailed the passing of their ancient right to roam the kingdom at will, making their living by petty marauding and fortune [illegible]. A governmental decree some 50,000 of them as subjects [illegible] Hungarian kingdom sound death knell of Hungary's old and most picturesque institution—gypsy life.

Publication of the decree brought a vehement protest from "King" Herre Bagi who lamented the loss of the "Freedom God Gave Us."

All Hungarian gypsies must now settle down in fixed abodes. The men will be liable for military service. They must abandon the costumes their forefathers wore for centuries. They are prohibited from speaking their own dialect.

NORRIS INSISTS POWER TRUST IS BIG ISSUE

Waukesha, Wis., July 20 (AP)—Possibility that Senator George Norris of Nebraska may take the stump in Wisconsin for senator Robert M. La Follette was indicated by the Nebraska senator here to spend a few weeks at his summer home on the shore of lake.

Senator Norris' chief quarrel with both the old party platforms is that they refused to mention the so-called power trust.

"Here is something," he said, which arouses the Middle West like prohibition and farm relief, formerly their favorite issues, never could arouse them. But both old parties refuse to mention it."

"Between Hoover and Tammany," said Senator Norris, "it's a pretty bitter pill to swallow. I acknowledge that Hoover is a man of great ability.

"Smith will be as suitable to the drys as will Hoover, if Hoover doesn't take a different course than Coolidge, who turned all the enforcement machinery over to the politicians. Smith can do no worse. "Political machinations are more insidious in this liquor situation than in anything else, since there is more money to be gained through liquor than through any form of illegality and bribery of official Bootleggers have money and are willing to spend it."

"This Smith-Hoover choice reminds me of what Sen. Brookhart told me. He went back to his home town after the session and saw six fellow townsmen standing and talking. There were three Democrats and three Republicans, and the three Democrats swore up and down they'd not vote for Smith and the three Republicans swore they would not vote for Hoover. Such is the situation."

Egypt's Ex-Premier Dead

Cairo, Egypt, July 21 (AP)—Mohammed Pasha Said, three times Prime Minister of Egypt, died today after a long illness.

A. LOEWENSTEIN ALIVE WHEN HE FELL INTO SEA

Calais, France, July 21 (AP)—Capt. Alfred Lowenstein was still alive when he plunged 4000 feet from his airplane over the English Channel, it was decided by the medical men who turned in their autopsy report today.

At the request of relatives a further examination will be made of internal organs to determine whether poison or disease caused the Belgian financier's abnormal condition at the time of the tragedy.

This is based upon the supposition that he tore off the collar and tie which were found in the plane.

Evidence has already been given that just before leaving his seat for the rear of the machine he acted as if he were suffering.

KIN SCOFF AT "ARRESTS" IN LOEWENSTEIN'S DEATH

Brussels, Belgium, July 21 (AP)—Members of Captain Alfred Lowenstein's entourage denounced as "rubbish" rumors that arrests were imminent in connection with the crime hypothesis of the death of the noted capitalist.

They said that these reports gained circulation when relatives insisted upon thorough postmortem examinations to clear up, if possible, the gossip respecting the banker's physical condition during the trip. The reports were reinforced by misinterpretation of the mutilated condition of the body. It was pointed out that this mutilation was such as would naturally result from a drop of 4,000 feet and long submersion in the English channel.

The body is expected to arrive at Brussels tonight. It is the intention of the Lowenstein family to have it conveyed in a cemetery immediately and with the strictest privacy.

Woman Injured

Miss Gertrude A. Blackwell, 43, of Hewlett st., Roslindale, had three teeth knocked from the front of her mouth and suffered injuries to her left leg when she was hit by a motor truck.

'RUSH HOUR' ENTRIES BRING FLOOD TIDE IN 'GANG' CONTEST

MOTHERS URGED TO GET THEIR 'STARS' IN LINE

Attention parents!

The popular "Our Gang" movie resemblance contest of his newspaper and Loew's Orpheum Theater is nearing its end.

The closing date for entries in this novel contest, whose object is to find "doubles" of the six principals in "Our Gang" comedies, will be announced soon in the Boston Evening American.

If you intend to enter your child, do so NOW! Don't wait! No additional entries will be received after this time limit, to be announced during the next few days. All entries received after the date to be announced, will not be considered.

So, get busy, mothers; don't delay, grandmothers! If you want your youngster to have an opportunity of going to California for three months, and acting in real "Our Gang" comedies at $100 a week (total $1200), send in the picture without further delay.

And remember that round-trip expenses to California of both parents is included in first prize. Something to strive for, isn't it?

ROACH AS JUDGE

When entries are closed, all children competing will be invited to visit the Orpheum theater, where the judges will select the six they believe most closely resemble the principals in "Our Gang."

The six children, thus chosen, will be candidates for first place honors and will also be the principals in a local "Our Gang" comedy, the scenario for which has already been written.

All other children entered will be invited to take part in this local movie as extras. It will be shown at the Orpheum. Hal Roach, clever producer of "Our Gang" comedies, is to be sole judge in the finals.

Mrs. Julia Wilkins of South Boston writes:

May I venture to send a photograph of my little Sally. I do not know which of the "Our Gang" girls she resembles most. Sometimes she looks like Jean Darling, and at other times like Mary. She is the light of our lives and is loved by every one in the neighborhood. I am looking forward to the day when I may see her angel face on the silver screen. I am praying each day that she will be the winner.

FULL OF "PEP"

Charlotte P. Nelson, of Brookline, writes:

I am enclosing some snapshots of my little niece who lives with me, as her daddy is dead and her mother works. I believe she resembles Mary Ann. I feel certain she has as much pep as the whole of "Our Gang" combined.

Mrs. A. MacMillan, of Brookline, writes:

Here is another addition to the cost of little girls who think they resemble Jean Darling. Although I cannot praise my daughter's mental or artistic abilities at this early age (3½ years) she is showing remarkable likeness to Jean both.

"The more I look at "Whereas" the more I think my nine-year-old son William resembles him," wrote Mrs. W. L. Conway, of Lynn. "I do hope he will be the fortunate one selected to go to California as I would like to give him a good education."

Mrs. John Holbrook of Everett wrote:

Since "Our Gang" contest started, all of my neighbors have been after me to send in my little girl's picture as they think she resembles Mary Ann very much. If she is the winner the money will be used for her education.

WORLD RACERS NEAR GOAL IN NEW YORK

exactly 45 seconds after 5 o'clock, the morning of June 29, according to the official timing of Benjamin F. Castle, treasurer of the National Aeronautic Club. If no reply there by noon Sunday, we will have made the trip around the world in 23 days and 7 hours. That will bang up a new record for the fastest time around the world. Whoopee.

Everything is in readiness for us to debark from the Canadian Pacific liner as soon as her nose touches her pier at Victoria. Our plane is already on deck. My pilot, Charles H. D Collyer, has tested her engines. She is ready to resume the flight in which she so sturdily carried us from the White Star liner Olympic's pier at Cherbourg, across Europe, Siberia and China to Yokohama. The Emperor of Russia has broken her own record for time across the Pacific to Victoria.

We will hop off from Victoria by plane tomorrow at daybreak. Tentatively, our schedule is to land in Seattle at 4 a. m., P. S. T., that day, and then make a non-stop flight to Omaha, arriving there at 3 o'clock tomorrow night.

We will take off from Omaha at daybreak Sunday morning, and expect to make our next landing at Miller field on Staten Island. From there we will rush by automobile and special tug back to the Battery, from where we started. Thus our trip will be complete.

Watch for us to circle over New York. It should be around noon, then watch for us to and at Miller Field, which the War Department has so kindly placed at our disposal, and then for our rush to the Battery. There's no doubt in our minds but that we will make it with flying colors. Again, I say: Whoopee!

John Henry Mears and Charles B. D. Collyer are now flying eastward across the Pacific on their attempt to establish a new world record by girdling the globe in less than 23 days. They will continue to send the story of their attempt exclusively to this newspaper.)

TROOPS QUICKLY QUELL REVOLT IN PORTUGAL

Lisbon, Portugal, July 21 (AP)—A revolutionary attempt against the government was made last night, but the situation was reported to be completely in hand today. Army detachments, the police and the Republican guard are maintaining order. The government stated that it was master of the situation and that order prevails throughout the country.

The last serious revolt in Portugal was in February, 1927, when there was heavy fighting in the streets of the capital and in the city of Oporto. The revolt finally was crushed.

FILE MORE PROTESTS ON NEW HUB GAS RATE

Additional protests against the new proposed schedule of rates filed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, which increases payments from small consumers and makes substantial reductions for large users are being received by the public utility commission. Mrs. L. G. Bailey of 20 Pine st., Cambridge, Jamaica Plain, today wrote the commission

"As a small consumer of gas I protest this granting of an increase in rates and service charge to the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. Why the extra service charge? Their fine new building surely proves that the present rates are highly profitable."

WINCHESTER MAN DIES AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Rufus C. Clark, 73, of Cottage ave., Winchester, died in Winchester Hospital today as a result of injuries sustained in an auto accident. Clark was a passenger in a car operated by Lieut. J. T. Acres, U. S. N., which crashed into the bridge over the Aberjona river on the Winchester Parkway Thursday.

Hoover Asks Data on 'Ma'

As the Elephant and Donkey Race

Northwood, Ia., July 21 (AP)—In a letter to an Iowa woman Herbert Hoover has asked:

"Please write and tell me all you can remember about my mother."

The request was received by Mrs. L. S. Butler, mother of a Chicago attorney. Rush C. Butler, and a schoolmate of the candidate's mother, Hulda Minthorn Hoover. It was in reply to a note of congratulation sent after the Kansas City convention.

Mrs. Butler, then Julia Ann Pickering, and Hulda Minthorn were pupils in a school taught by Joel and Hannah Bean here West Branch, Iowa, where the Republican candidate was born. Raised in nearby Quaker communities, the women became close friends during the two years they attended the school.

Miss Minthorn later married another student at the school, Jesse Hoover, remembered as "a quiet, good boy," by Mrs. Butler.

Hoover's father was the black smith at the Quaker village of West Branch. His mother became an authorized preacher in the Society of Friends. Death ended Mrs. Hoover's work when Herbert was but ten years old. His father died a few years earlier.

Portland, Ore., July 21 (AP)—Formation of a Smith-for-President organization in Oregon has been delayed by the statement of Lotus L. Langley, Democratic State central committee chairman, that he does not care to sponsor a discussion of plans for the Democratic standard bearer's campaign "at this time."

His statement was delivered by letter at a dinner here at which he had been asked to act as toastmaster. Discussion of preliminary plans of the organization was halted and a committee appointed to wait on Langley with a request to reconsider.

Washington, July 21—Republican National Chairman Work is ready to confer with Governor Governor Lowden of Illinois on campaign plans if the recent presidential aspirant desires to co-operate in the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

Palo Alto, Cal., July 21—Taking a leaf from a previous Republican nominee for President as his first political move since getting the nod, Herbert Hoover today sent invitations to Governor C. C. Young, Senator Hiram W. Johnson and Senator Samuel M. Shortridge to visit them at his home. The trio of California Republican leaders all have separate followings.

GLIDER PILOT NEAR DEATH

back to the starting point. The principals involved in getting one of these craft off the ground is much the same as that used in boy's sling shot or catapult. Two lines of flexible rubber cables are attached to the glider, and with these men run forward to the edge of the cliff, where on a signal from the pilot they snap the glider into the air and the cables are cast off.

On this attempt five men took hold of each cable and two others attempted to lift the tail. The five went forward, the glider rolled and surged ahead, and the signal was given to snap the craft and cast off.

There was no wind however, and instead of soaring into the air the Darmstadt plunged along the ground, coming to a halt almost at the endge of the cliff.

The plane was moved from Corn Hill here to Highland Light yesterday because the glider experts believed wind conditions were more favorable at the latter place, three miles distant.

COUSIN OF TAFT WEDS AT BIDDEFORD TODAY

Biddeford, Me., July 21 (AP)—Marriage of Hulbert Taft, son of the late Peter Taft of Cincinnati and cousin of Chief Justice Howard Taft of the United States Supreme Court, and Virginia Ketteredge, daughter of William Ketteredge, Cincinnati lawyer, will be solemnized today at the summer colony of Biddeford Pool, near here.

The couple will be married by the Rev. Philip Schuyler of New York, rector of St. Martin's-by-the-Sea at the Pool. Taft is a Cincinnati newspaper man. A widower of the five-day filing of intentions of marriage was granted by Judge Harry B. Ayer of the Probate Court.

RADIO TANGLE HALTS SMITH ACCEPTANCE

Albany, N. Y., July 21 (INS)—Governor Al Smith today was forced to postpone until next week announcement of the date of his presidential notification meeting because of a tangle over radio broadcasting hours.

The Governor was informed by the National Broadcasting Co. of the available hours in which he can have the air for his acceptance speech, but they were not acceptable to him.

Asked how many hours he thought he would need, he replied, smilingly:

"It's a question of the hours we can get."

The Governor is understood to have decided, however, that the notification will be held some night in the week of August 20. He is anxious that radio stations in every part of the country broadcast the speech.

The Governor has a new dog, a four months old St. Bernard, presented him by W. C. Banks of Saugus, Mass.

"He's a peach of a pup and I've christened him Duke," Smith said. "He hasn't any teeth yet, but he has a foot like a ham."

The Governor planned to spend the afternoon at a local country club playing golf with his son, Arthur, and new son-in-law, Francis J. Quinlan. After church tomorrow he will take an auto ride with Mrs. Smith.

Raskob Names Smith Campaign Committees

New York, July 21 (AP)—A general staff, composed of executive and advisory committees, has been named by John R. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, to conduct the presidential campaign of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Both committees will operate from the national headquarters here in the General Motors building.

The executive committee, in addition to Raskob, consists of Senator Gerry, James J. Hoey, Col. Herbert Lehman, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Franklin D. Roosevelt and George R. Van Namee.

MOTHER AND DAUGNTER BURNED IN GAS BLAST

A mother and daughter were burned today when a gasoline explosion set fire to the kitchen of Mrs. Florence O'Neill, school st., Revere. Mrs. O'Neill was preparing breakfast when she and left a cup of it in the sink. A lighted match, tossed after the flaming liquid, started a flare that ignited the clothing of Mrs. O'Neill and her daughter, Mrs. Grace Sinness. The mother's aid and received burns about the hands.

Mrs. Sinness was severely burned about the face and was taken to a nearby physician for treatment. The kitchen damage was placed at $300.

LYNN MAN WARNED AND FINED OVER HIS DOGS

The excuse that he had procured license tags for his dogs was presented to court failed to save Xens Turrison of Euclid ave., Lynn, from a fine of $15 today in the Lynn District Court. Dr. Sinness, dog officer, said two police dogs owned by Turrison were the property of others. He found in his experience and asked that they be shot. Judge Reed of the court said he if further complaints were received. The dogs attacked the doctor and a motorcycle policeman, he testified.

Gasping for breath, the youngsters dashed into the station shouting somebody had broken into the school. A squad of officers was rushed to the scene. They searched the building, but could find no trace or a break. John Crahan, custodian of the building, assisted the officers in the search.

Coolidge Dog, Insulted by Master, Cuts Him Dead

Superior, Wis., July 21 (AP)—To be left behind by one's best friend is tough, but when the pal happens to be the President of the United States, it is just too much.

Rob Roy's eyes said that and more when Mrs. Calvin Coolidge stepped from his canoe after a morning's fishing trip.

The collie and Mr. Coolidge had been inseparable. Morning and afternoon found them together on the lake and the dog soon began to act as though he thought the trips were built for his personal amusement, jumping about and barking.

"Cut me a short stick, John, about a foot long," the President said one day to his Indian guide, John Larock.

The stick worked, for all the President had to do was pick it up and the dog subsided. Receiving for it interfered with fishing, and Mr. Coolidge decided to discipline Rob Roy.

"We will not take him along on this trip," he said one day as he started out.

The collie was lying near between his paws, by the lodge veranda, when the canoe returned. Hardly he bounded toward the President when he saw him. but this time he did not more. His eyes, however, never left the President's face.

"Robert, how are you?" tendered Mr. Coolidge, but there was no reaction from the dog.

Mrs. Coolidge stooped to pet the collie, remarking, "Why, Rob, that's the President, don't you know him?" Rob's feelings were too badly hurt to be soothed by a few words and it took him some time to recover.

Now, however, it is no longer necessary for the little stick to accompany the President and the collie in the canoes.

Hyena Dies in the Den Where He Sulked for 12 Years

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The old spotted hyena at the Washington Zoo, which had an insane fear of the light and the open, has found perpetual darkness. He is dead and a self-imposed sentence of years within the walls of a boxlike den has ended.

The animal was brought to the zoo about 12 years ago.

A large open outdoor pen had been built for him and in one corner was a walled barrel. The hyena was released and bolted for the den.

He never came out so far as the attendants knew, save once or twice when cragged forth by force. Efforts were made to starve him out by placing the only food served him in a corner of the pen farthest from the house—but the food went untouched.

BURRILL RAPS JULY 28 FETE AS NO 'G. O. P.'

Failure of the Essex County Division of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts to invite all the G. O. P. candidates for major positions to its garden-party at the home of Mrs. William Gordon Means at Prides Crossing, on Saturday, July 28, was today branded as "rank discrimination" by Charles L. Burrill, one of the nine aspirants for the nomination for lieutenant-governor.

In a letter to Mrs. Means, Burrill today pointed out several omissions made by the club, in addition to himself.

"We should have a united party this fall for Hoover and Curtis, but the above discrimination is not making for party harmony," he warned.

"I am of Essex County stock in the strict convention from George Burrill, a freeman of Lynn; am a member of the Founders and Patriots and the Governor & Co. of Massachusetts Bay in New England and an ardent supported of the lamented Henry Cabot Lodge."

BOX LUNCH PIE INFECTED, SAYS MAHONEY

Despite the violent illness of Deputy City Health Commissioner Frederick J. Bailey, martyr to the cause of pie poisoning, who ate pie at lunches that felled 200 at the Ford plant, the report of Dr. Francis A. Mahoney, health commissioner, today revealed that "chemical examination disclosed no foreign substance in a poisonous nature."

Organisms were found, the report said, that would produce "extreme malaise."

Quoting Catherine Atwood, acting director of the bacteriological laboratory of the city health department, he said:

"The chemical examination disclosed the presence of no foreign substance of a poisonous nature but the bacteria produced the sickness alleged to have been caused by the eating of this box lunch.

"The contaminating germs were mostly infected with organisms, any number of which, when taken into the system under favorable conditions, would produce extreme malaise.

"These bacteria are not normally found, in food products and when found in milk products are unusual. Therefore the milk as a source of contamination may be eliminated."

REPORT ONE DEATH FROM INFANTILE PARALYSIS

One death from infantile paralysis and two other cases were reported in Waltham today. Mrs. Emma F. Cormier, 27 years, died at her home in Hall ave. after five days' illness. Mary O'Brien, 17 months old, of Cushing st., was removed to Massachusetts General Hospital suffering from the dread disease, and Warren Vallely, 7 years, of Myrtle st., was removed to Children's Hospital of Boston.

HOOVER PLANS TRIP FOR REST IN THE HILLS

Stanford University, Cal., July 21 (AP)—Abandoning his original plans for a quiet week-end at his home here, Herbert Hoover today began a series of political conferences which will be continued intermittently until the time of his notification on August 11.

Governor C. C. Young of California was the first of those from whom the Republican presidential nominee sought information. Next week Mr. Hoover will confer with Senator Hiram Johnson and leaders from other Pacific coast states.

Between times, the nominee will work on his acceptance address, almost all of which already is in the first draft stage.

After the speech is ready for the printer he will take to the hills for several days of rest and fishing.

Hoover Limited G. O. P. Fund to $3,000,000

Palo Alto, Cal., July 21 (INS)—Herbert Hoover personally ordered a limitation of $3,000,000 upon the Republican campaign fund for the coming presidential election, it was learned here today. The nominee left instructions before he left Washington for his home here that the budget for the coming campaign should be kept within the amount used to elect President Coolidge in 1924. That limit was $3,000,000. The limit was announced in Washington yesterday.

The limitation of the campaign fund, observers here believed was a further indication that Hoover has taken over the reins of the party and will contribute personally to conduct his campaign. The naming of C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to President Coolidge, as Southern campaign manager, was looked upon as a similar indication.

Slemp was an active Hoover manager in the pre-convention days and the nominee relied constantly on the political advice in the battle for the nomination.

Slemp will be assisted in conducting a drive to break into the solid South by Col. Horace Mann of Tennessee, it was reported here by Hoover's friends. Mann a personal friend of Claudius H. Huston, the Hoover pre-convention treasurer, long has been active in Southern Republican politics.

Air-Cooled Drama Prospers

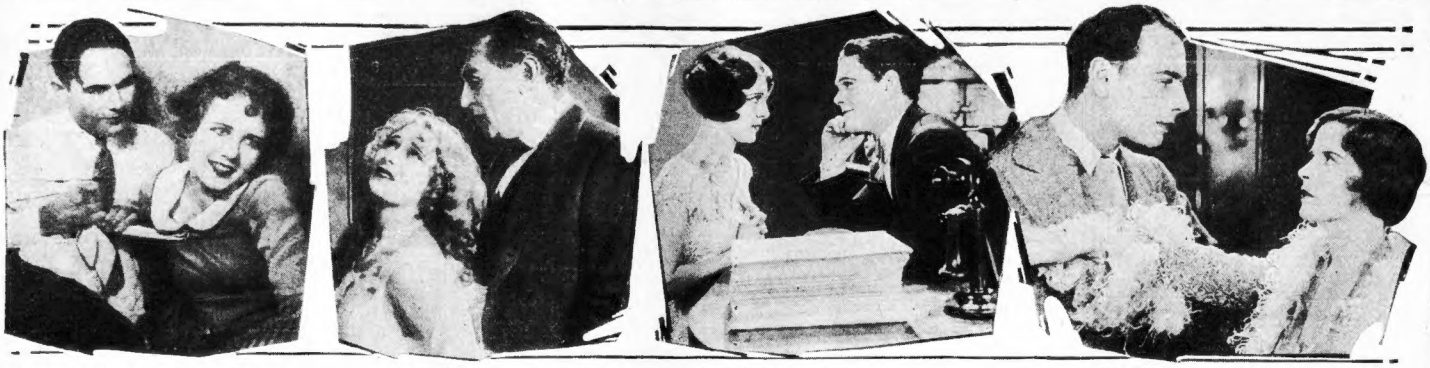
The Muse follows the vacationists. In Newport Ina Claire is doing "Mrs. Cheyney"; up in Skowhegan the Lakewood Players bring Broadway to Maine; while down on Cape Cod, Peggy Wood flourishes "Candida" at Dennis, and Louis Leon Hall does various plays at The Wharf in Provincetown.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Herr Jannings Is Restive?

Although Emil Jannings has bought a home on the West Coast and shows every indication of settling down, the busy gossips are whispering. They say he much prefers Berlin and Pilsner to Hollywood and near beer and those English lessons forced upon him for the new conversational cinema.

NEW FILM PLAYS DISCLOSE FAMILIAR FACES IN THE EVER SHIFTING SHADOWS



NOTHING ALARMING in this almost-tough scene from "Telling the World." Neither is there anything exciting in the gag we thought to work up about William Haines tugging at the heartstrings of Anita Page. (State).

ALTOGETHER, NOW, LET'S HISS! Doesn't this indignity make you indignant? Or can you sleep just as soundly? Good! Then you'll enjoy "Tenderloin," the new "talky" with Dolores Costello and Mitchell Lewis. (Olympia, Fenway).

BUSINESS AT THE CHEESERY. Glen Tryon, what you might call the head cheese, interviews Patsy Ruth Miller for the job of perforating on Swiss cheeses. You won't believe a word of this when you see "Hot Heels," the new one at the Keith-Albee Boston.

TAKING THE RAP, as it were. William Collier, Jr., takes the hint and leaves May McAvoy to regret that she handed him the mitten, as they say. This is "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Scollay, a good old play that now returns to haunt the shadows of the misty screen.

JOLSON SIGNS FOR MORE PICTURES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, July 20—Lots of people who come to Hollywood leave and there are no tears shed. When Al Jolson gets ready to leave we will all be at the train urging him to come back soon. Now that invitation will be unnecessary, for yesterday Mr. Jolson signed a new contract with Jack Warner, agreeing to make more Vitaphone pictures for Warner Brothers.

Mr. Jolson's contract calls for one picture a year, which gives him plenty of time to go on with his stage work and do anything else. He leaves shortly for New York to get "Mister Bones" in readiness. After a season on the stage, he will come back to Hollywood to make his next picture, which, of course, will have singing, dancing and typical Jolson comedy.

Mr. Jolson is somewhat in the position of the director who makes a masterpiece and then is called upon to equal it. "The Jazz Singer" was one of the best pictures of last year. Now he is expected to break that record. Some achievement and some task. But on the strength of his work, all of the film companies were angling for his services. So Warners are feeling pretty chesty.

GERTRUDE OLMSTEAD looks like a youngster of 16 these days with socks and her new summer wardrobe. Maybe that is the reason that Harry G. Hoyt lost no time in signing her for a starring role in "Passion Song." Mr. Hoyt is just back from across the pond, where he made a picture. Now he is going to make several pictures at the Tec Arts Studios for Excellent Pictures Corporation. Noah Beery is to play the Beery and Gordon Elliott is the male lead in this same "Passion Song." Some title. Well, they tell me this is the kind that goes, so why not?

"RUNAWAY GIRLS" is the title of an original story by Lillie Hayward about to go into production at Columbia. Before I say so much as say a word about the cast I want to speak of the author.

Lillie and her typewriter are now permanently ensconced at Columbia, where she is turning out originals, doing adaptations and showing just how well she knows her stuff. She ought to, for she is the girl who adapted "Janice Meredith," one of Marion Davies' greatest successes, and she also wrote innumerable Fox dramas.

This "Runaway Girls" will have Shirley Mason, Arthur Rankin, Hedda Hopper, Edward Earle, George Irving and Alice Lake. Mark Sandrich (goodness gracious, I almost called him Sandwich), is the director. Dorothy Howell is writing the continuity.

LOCATE Joseph Kennedy these days if you can. He is as elusive as a will o' the wisp. First you hear he is back at F. B. O., then report places him out at the DeMille studios. You'd have to put on seven league boots to keep up with him.

They were expecting him at First National, where things are rather quiet, waiting for the new lord and master to make decisions. I can think of nothing more depressing than a studio expecting the axe to fall any moment. Yet those closest to Mr. Kennedy say he has no intention of combining First National with any of the other film companies that thrives will function much as they did before.

Most Famous Jockey Plays Role in Boston Film

Tod Sloan world's premier jockey, enacts a prominent role in the film farce, "Hot Heels," at the Keith-Albee Boston.

Sloan is widely recognized as one of the greatest riders of all times and whose annual income in his heyday was greater than the combined earnings of Earl Sande, Babe Ruth and Red Grange.

Between 1894 and 1901 his percentage of winners for a single season was 24½, which is approached only by another jockey's 21.

Sloan made his first motion picture in London. He appeared in two pictures after his return to America and then retired.

Varsity Vamp

MILDRED COSTELLO makes all the boys get that way in dear old Talk, musical comedy college of "Good News" at the Majestic.

CHARLES RAY "IN PERSON"

Movie fans may next week see and hear one of filmdom's favorite movie dolls, Charles Ray, who will appear at the Scollay Sq. Olympia beginning Monday. To the screen public Mr. Ray will always be a likable youth. He started his career on the stage, and spent five years in musical comedy, drama, vaudeville and vaudeville. Charles Ray knows what it is to say, "Forty tune, yo' done gone and gone."

Charles Ray

He has earned several fortunes, only to lose them. This "beautiful boy" has probably had more hard luck than any other actor on the screen.

Most of Charles Ray's ill fortune has come through trying to produce pictures independently. He seems to be through now with making pictures "on his own," and has signed up with Universal.

Dwight Taylor's Farce Is New Favorite at Copley

The Copley Players have scored another bullseye in what appears to be a sure-fire success in "Don't Tell George," an uproarious farce written by Dwight Taylor.

The continued engagement of "Don't Tell George" gives every indication that the theater will remain open during the entire summer, which is something to really brag about, especially in these supposedly lean theatrical days.

The piece is typically an English farce, of the nature so pleasing to Copley fans.

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE!

Hugo Lundgren, treasurer of the Majestic where "Good News" is established, has a radio in the box office. Recently, while the baseball scores were being given out, a lady stepped up to the window to buy two seats in the orchestra.

"Where are they?" she asked Hugo.

"Third row, madam," replied the beaming treasurer.

Immediately after, came the voice over the radio announcing the scores at the end of the eighth inning, with emphasis on the "eighth."

Hugo Lundgren

"I thought you said the third," said the woman, who could not see the radio which is tucked away in a corner.

"The third is right," said Hugo.

He turned around again, during which time the game had progressed to the ninth inning, and the broadcast came again with emphasis on the "ninth."

"What are you trying to do?" said the lady, "First you tell me I can have seats in the third row, then you correct yourself and I find that I can have the eighth. Now I am back in the ninth?"

"But here are the tickets in the third row, madam," said Hugo, and the lady took them and paid for them and walked away with many a backward glance at Hugo, who started moving the radio on near the box-office window where the world could see it.

"IT'S A TOUGH GAME," SAYS MR. WOOD

The lot of the motion picture director is, like the cop in the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, not a happy one—according to Sam Wood, who handled the megaphone for William Haines' new picture, "Telling the World," which appears at Loew's State next week.

Wood is one of the few veteran movie directors, having guided Wallie Reid's famous racing stories. He claims that the life of the average director is no longer lived than that of the average star.

"It's a queer job," he said. "The nervous strain of doing a big production is tremendous.

"If you haven't temperamental stars to contend with, you have extra people. In this picture, Anita Page, who plays the feminine lead, was appearing in her first picture. She was absolutely green and, although she caught on with marvelous rapidity, it was still a strain.

"Handling foreign players is always a tough job for directors. Talking to them through the interpreter is never satisfactory and you usually end up by showing them in pantomime.

"You have worries like this in every picture. The life of a star, the average, that is, is five years. I don't believe a director is good for much longer. We get tired, you see, and then quit—or else lose our grip and become gradually incompetent.

"But," added Wood, grimly, "I'm not quitting just yet. I'm getting too much fun out of my job."

The Nautical Swimming Pool measures nearly 250 feet long, 100 feet wide, and is equipped with every modern convenience.

The pool has also a system of submarine lighting, which with an additional use of more than 50,000 watts of electricity affords night bathing with a daylight effect.

Madeleine Borlo, famous aquatic queen, appears daily in a series of fancy and high diving feats and revenls her method of keeping fit.

"THE RACKET" IS FILM OF REALISM

By LEO GAFFNEY

The golden age of bunkless movies comes nearer by a seven-league stride with "The Racket," new and magnificent shadow play at the Metropolitan.

In seven turgid chapters it races along with the straightest of straight stories about crime, graft, politics, bootlegging and kindred ailments of the body public.

Pell mell, violent and even raw is "The Racket," but it is the Big City itself, sprawling and corrupt if you please, but correct in its every detail.

Where previous films of the underworld have fallen down, "The Racket" stands up strongly. Its story was written by Bartlett Cormack, a Chicago newspaperman, and its producer, Howard Hughes, pushed it through, apparently without changing a line.

With never a sop to any of the fearfully familiar movie sentiment, the production holds its true course. The characters are not allowed to "emote," and, flapping take notice, there is no "love interest" as such.

For example: Director Lewis Milestone utilizes the talents of Lee Moran and Skeets Gallagher as a pair of newspaper reporters, and is not shy in showing them with a whiskey bottle in one pocket and a copy of the American Mercury in the other. As for the girl in the case (Marie Prevost), not one "clinch" with the handsome boy is she vouchsafed. Not even a suggestion of a wedding at the finish!

Then there is Thomas Meighan, saved at last from the most deplorable stories ever a star put up with. If you bring binoculars you might detect a too tightly buttoned appearance in the Meighan police captain's uniform, but that is all that speaks of the once monotonously perfect Thomas M. that was slowly driving us mad.

But there, we have nearly forgotten Louis Wolheim whose character sketch of the boss bootlegger is the best of the show. His battered visage alone would be enough to "carry" any shady character he chose to portray, but Mr. Wolheim is more than just a type; he is a actor of consummate skill.

There is a good stage show at the Metropolitan this week, but we had eyes only for "The Racket" yesterday. It is, as they say in the premises, the berries, which is always interpreted as the highest praise.

THE DUFFERS' CORNER

WHEN A-GOLFING, it is better for the turf-slashers to withdraw to the admiring sidelines. In "Green Grass Widows," at the Modern and Beacon, Gertrude Olmsted and Lincoln Stedman do that little thing.

"Give My Love to America," Murmurs Star As Death Rings Down Curtain

IN ONE OF HER GREATEST ROLES

Dame Ellen Terry, one of the most famous actresses of all time, who died today in Kent, England, at the age of 80, is shown here as "Iolanthe" in one of her greatest roles.

AS GIRL AT FAME'S THRESHOLD

This photo shows Miss Terry at 19. In her final moments she sent a message of love to America, where she had attained her most marvelous success.

WHEN HER END WAS NEAR

This is one of Dame Ellen's most recent photos, made when she had reached her four score years. Her last speaking part on the stage was as Portia in "The Merchant of Venice."

ELLEN TERRY, ACTRESS, DIES IN ENGLAND

English countryside. When one is 80, one has dreams of days gone by and often in my dreams I live again the many happy times I spent in America. My heart is warm with the memorie of my friends across the sea.

The whole wide world which loves such consummate art as that with which Ellen Terry charmed and thrilled lovers of the drama for more than half a century was plunged into mourning by the news that the final curtain had been rung down on her great career.

She celebrated her 80th birthday last February. She was prevented by illness at that time from replying, as she had planned, to the message broadcast in her honor over the radio by Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson.

To the last, Dame Ellen had followed the affairs of the stage with the greatest interest. She played her last Shakespearean part as Portia in the trial scene from "The Merchant of Venice" in 1921.

Her last stage part, a non-speaking role, was that of the ghost of a kindly mother in Walter de la Mare's "Crossings" when she was 77 after she had gone more or less into retirement in the country of which she was passionately fond.

Her summers were spent quietly at her charming cottage in Kent. In winter until last year she came up to her London flat in the heart of the land of the theater and saw as many plays as she had strength for.

Until two years ago Miss Terry never failed to appear at first nights in London.

Twins Baffle Court and Both May Go Free

Columbus, O., July 21 (AP)—A twentieth century "Comedy of Errors" with only one pair of twins, is being enacted in Federal Court here, And one pair is plenty, declares Judge Benson W. Hough, who is trying to solve the puzzle.

Clark and Mark O'Connor, twins if you ever saw any, were arrested on narcotic charges. They pleaded guilty before Judge Hough. One had already been in jail 30 days awaiting trial and the other 60 days. So Judge Hough sentenced the former to 60 days and the latter to 30 days just to balance things.

Then somebody—court attaches don't know who — told Judge Hough he had it the wrong way round and one lad was about to get 120 days and the other 60. So the judge had the court records erased and the sentence switched. Then the sister of the twins came to court and said it was still twisted—that the judge had it right the first time.

Now Clark—or maybe it's Mark—is to be released because of a statute which prohibits lengthening of a sentence. And Mark—or perhaps it's Clark—probably will be freed because it wouldn't be fair to keep him in jail and let the other go. That's the only solution, court attaches say.

MEXICO LINDY'S BODY IS HOME

Laredo, Tex., July 21 (INS)—The body of Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexico's premier flier, who was killed in a crash in New Jersey several days ago while winging homeward from a good will tour to the United States, was returned to his home land in an imposing and colorful ceremony on the International bridge here today.

The predominant note of the ceremonies was military, but civilians by the thousands from this city and Nuevo Laredo, across the border, witnessed the affair and joined in their expressions of genuine sorrow for the gallant young flier.

One thousand troops from Ft. McIntosh, near here, took part in the exercises held on the International bridge.

REBEL SANDINO IS 'POCKETED'

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The marines in Nicaragua hope to reach the end of their campaign against Gen. Sandino within a few months.

Latest reports say the insurgent leader and his band are practically surrounded by the American forces in northern Nicaragua. Surrender or flight to Honduras are looked for within a comparatively short time.

A campaign of "pocketing" the band is being pursued. Marine officers say Sandino has been isolated from his sources of supplies, either by the American troops or by the impassibility of the jungle trails, brought on by the rainy season. It is thought the only food to reach him is being floated down the Bocay and Segovia rivers.

Marine headquarters here estimate the strength of the Sandino band at 150 men. Dispatches picture Sandino as fearful for his personal safety and on his guard against treachery.

BREWSTER UNVEILS MEMORIAL TO LADD

Minot Center, Me., July 21 (AP)—The 150th observance of the birth of William Ladd and 100th anniversary of the American Peace Society, which he founded, today brought speakers of national importance to this little town. A bronze memorial tablet in front of the Congregational Church will be unveiled by Governor Ralph O. Brewster. Speakers included David Jayne Hill, former ambassador to Germany; Dr. Arthur Derrin Call, secretary of the American Peace Society; Dr. Yu-Chuen James Yen, general director of the Chinese National Association of Mass Education; President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College, and President Clifton D. Gray of Bates College.

Bowdoin Bill

Lon Chaney heads the bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre next week in his new picture, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh!" Another film feature is "Wyoming," with Tim McCoy. Vaudeville completes the show.

Norumbega Park

May Collier, high diving expert, will be the featured attraction at Norumbega Park next week. There are, too, pictures and vaudeville in the open air theater and various midway diversions.

SCARLET FEVER CASES TRACED TO RAW MILK

Unpasteurized milk, handled by a person in contact with a sufferer of scarlet fever, was the cause of the recent outbreak of scarlet fever in Pembroke and Marshfield, which affected 26 persons, an investigation made public by Public Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow revealed today.

The outbreak, Dr. Bigelow said, was traced to milk sold by Gilbert West, of Pembroke, to A. J. Gage, a distributor. A woman, who had been handling the milk for West, it was stated, had come in contact with a scarlet fever case.

TWO DEATH TRIES FAIL, THE THIRD IS SUCCESS

Philadelphia, July 21 (AP)—Standing on the steps of a church, Joseph Green, Jr., 21, said, "Well, I'm going now," pointed a pistol at his head and pulled the trigger twice. It clicked but did not explode. A group of friends a few feet away laughed and chided him, telling him to stop fooling. "Well, so long," he said, and pulled the trigger a third time. This time the pistol worked and he died in a hospital early today. His friends told police his act was caused by unrequited love.

SHACKLE BULK OF WORLD'S WAR MACHINERY

By LAWRENCE J. SULLIVAN
International News Correspondent

Washington, July 21—Fifteen governments, masters of more than two-thirds of all the war machinery in the world, are agreed today upon a first venture in shackling their engines of destruction.

A seven-hundred word treaty renouncing war is the straight-jacket the powers have agreed to slip over the mailed armor of Mars.

So complex was the task of bringing the powers to agreement upon the terms that more than a year has been consumed in the wording of this little scrap of paper which diplomats hope may clog the belching maws of the greatest howitzers.

Standing armies and organized land reserves aggregating more than 2,000,000 men; regular naval forces totaling 600,000 men; approximately 4,000,000 of the world's 6,000,000 tons of fighting vessels—these constitute the military forces of the powers which have formally signified their readiness to sign on the dotted line—"That they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another."

With the announced acceptances today of Japan and Czecho-Slovakia—the last of the 14 governments—the foreign offices of the powers are now in correspondence over the exact date for signing the epochal covenant in Paris, probably in September.

Secretary of State Kellogg is prepared to sail for Europe for the solemn ceremonies as early as mid-August.

FIX HEADLIGHTS IS APPEAL TO MOTORISTS

By FRANK A. GOODWIN
Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"Why are headlights so bad?"

"Why isn't a law passed to stop glaring lights?"

These questions are being asked repeatedly and I suppose the answer to them is the same as to the question, "When are we going to have prohibition?"

F. A. Goodwin

We have plenty of law and good law, but practically no enforcement. If every owner of a car would follow the instructions given out by the automobile registry department, he would get a better driving light and would not be a nuisance to other operators.

Unfortunately, however, out of the 700,000 owners of cars in Massachusetts there are tens of thousands who will do nothing to better conditions if it costs them either time or money.

It is therefore apparent that there must be constant enforcement drives to compel obedience to the law.

LAW COMPLICATED

The headlight law is so complicated, so far as prosecution in the courts is concerned, that the police, unless specially trained, cannot give any aid. The only hope is through the trained force, as the automobile registry and the department cannot get anywhere because of lack of men.

The heavy driving season is during summer, and of course that is the period when headlight enforcement is necessary, but that is also the time when thousands are clamoring to be examined, and therefore there are few men available for enforcement of the headlight law.

The registry department never had enough men for proper enforcement.

The State is always searching for new ways to take money from motorists to spend building roads and paying for roads built years ago, millions for roads, but not much for protection of life.

In view of the fact that the State will not enforce the headlight law, let every motorist resolve to do his part. It is very easy if the directions are followed, and in most cases the cost is nothing.

ALL SHOULD HELP

Anyone can focus and aim lamps properly. All he has to do is to place the car 25 feet from the walls and adjust the bulbs, until he gets the smallest spot of light possible on the wall. The top of this spot of light should be no higher than the waist, and in the case of a Ford should be lower still to allow for loading.

Every operator should try this for his own benefit, if not for the convenience of others, because he will find a far better driving light.

Speaking of Fords, this question is continually asked, "Why are the lights on the Ford worse than on other cars?" Why pick on the Ford. It has excellent headlamps. The principal reason why Fords seem worse, is because there are so many of them; and then again, when the average person adjusts lamps on a Ford, he forgets something. He forgets that after he gets them right when the car is empty, a few heavy weights of the family get into the back seat so that the back goes down and the front goes up, and so does the glaring beam of light.

Come on everybody! Get out in the back yard or up against the garage door and fix your lights. By so doing you may prevent a serious accident.

Turtle in Log Letter Prize Is Offered

The Secretary of Turtle Affairs (or, as the orthodox a la carte will have it, the "Charge d'Turtles" has his desk all cleared today in readiness for an avalanche of letters on how turtles get into three-ton oak logs and live there for this or that long.

If you haven't known it before, you know it now—the Boston Evening American will pay $10 for the best letter explaining the writer's view as to how "Sleepyhead Oaky," the entombed turtle, got into the center of a log that was submerged in a Florida lake for 73 years.

Did he fall or was he pushed?

That's for you to answer.

The turtle over which all this fuss is being made was found in the center of a live oak log when it was being cut preparatory to being installed in the U. S. Fitzsimons Constitution, under reconstruction at the Boston Navy Yard.

Whether the turtle had been living in the center of the log for 73 years no one but the turtle knows. And he won't tell. He's too hard-shelled.

There are no rules to this letter-writing thing—excepting no biting and the barring of the rapid punch in scrolling the capitals.

If you want the money in turtles, say so.

Judges of the letters will be Rear-Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the Boston Navy Yard; Lieut. John Lord U. S. N., in charge of the Constitution reconstruction work, and Park Commissioner William F. Long. Address your letters to "Sleepyhead Oaky," Boston Evening American, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston.

STRIKE LEADER BEAL GREETED; OUT OF JAIL

New Bedford, July 21 (AP)—A handful of early rising followers welcomed Fred E. Beal back to strike leadership this morning, when he emerged from the house of correction after a 30-day sentence of disturbing the peace.

Miss Mary Sylvia of the Textile Workers Union stepped up to him with a bouquet of flowers as he walked out with an armful of books at 7:20.

Sheriff Isaac E. Willetts to avoid a demonstration, had arranged to have Beal away from jail before 8 a. m., which is the usual hour for release. While Beal was being greeted with more followers and with confetti at the Textile Workers headquarters group after group of admirers was arriving at the jail only to learn that their man had already gone.

Beal, whose sentence came on his appeal from a $15 fine for disturbance on a mill gate picket line, said he had been treated well in jail and announced he would return to his strike activities.

The usual Saturday quiet prevailed at the mill gates, today. The Nonquitt mill which has been a storm center was not open. Few operatives went to work.

U. S. LAWYERS IN PARIS DIVORCE TANGLES

Paris, July 21 (AP)—The names of three prominent attorneys today were brought into the court trial of the seven French "owners" of office lawyers who prepared American divorce cases with alleged fraudulent documents.

American divorce lawyers in general were blamed by the court for their conduct.

Presiding Judge Wattine mentioned by name Dudley Field Malone, Charles G. Loeb, the attorney Lulu Balnbridge Colby whose divorce was refused, and Benjamin H. Conner, president of the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris.

The judge said of American divorce lawyers in connection with scandal "their role has been reprehensible, they knowingly imposed upon French justice."

SIGN OF "MONEY AGE"

Seven of the French office lawyers defended themselves with varying success, most of them denying intentional guilt and declaring that they had assumed all the papers were correct. In some cases, particularly the one of M. Legrande, the prosecution's allegations were controverted and Legrande apparently convinced the court that most of his disputed documents were entirely proper.

The judge, however, cited a number of cases in which the same case was used in several divorces to establish residence and other cases where the lease was all right but the divorce applicant remained but a short time, failing to establish genuine French residence.

American attorneys whose cases were attacked but against whom there was no legal action were loath to comment. One, however, said:

"Undoubtedly ther have been irregularities in speeding up certain cases here, but American lawyers have aided the investigation in every way and have been thanked by the authorities for their co-operation."

The others preferred not to comment, leaving it for the French avoues to present the defense in court.

LAWYERS DEFEND SELVES

Judge Wattine, opening the case, emphasized the high position in the public eye of several of the American attorneys. Conner and Loeb are officers of the American Chamber of Commerce, and mentioned Conner as "receiving the premier and Cabinet ministers."

When it came time for the prosecutor to speak, the latter said:

"The matter of American divorces will remain as a sign of the money age. I regret that men of the bar lent themselves to hoodwinking justice. It is to be hoped that it will never happen again."

JACK SHARKEY SCORES VICTORY IN COURT

Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight contender, scored a victory over the warrant session of the Municipal court today. Application was made for a warrant charging Sharkey with leaving the scene of an accident without making his identity known. As a hearing before Judge Parmenter Sharkey denied all knowledge of the accident. Government witnesses testified that it was possible Sharkey's rear bumper may have scraped the side of another car in a traffic jam on Stuart st. They said the conduct of the cars was such that little damage was done and Sharkey was probably unaware of what happened.

Judge Parmenter then denied the application for the warrant.

Files His Papers

Clerk John E. Campbell of the superior criminal court filed his nomination papers with the Secretary of State. Campbell's Democratic nomination papers contained 10,500 names.

Anne Bruce Weds "Slim" in $1,000 Bridal Gown

Chicago, July 21 (AP)—The crew of the transatlantic plane Friendship, here for a four-day visit, had added another name to the roster as it whirled into the third day of a round of receptions.

The new member is Mrs. Lou Gordon, formerly Miss Anne Bruce of Brookline, Mass., who late last night became the bride of Louis "Slim" Gordon, mechanician of the Friendship.

The bride in a $1000 gown of lace and white satin, a present of admirers, was given in marriage by Maj. Reed Landis of Chicago, former classmate of Amelia Earhart, now famous as the first woman to cross the Atlantic in an airplane.

Miss Earhart, a Boston social workers' graduated from a Chicago high school in 1915, temporarily stepped from the limelight during the wedding and her place was taken by Miss Bruce. As honorary maid of honor, Miss Earhart sat in a box during the ceremony.

JAZZ WEDDING MARCH.

The wedding of Gordon and Miss Bruce was performed in a public hall room by Municipal Judge William E. Fetzer, while 5000 persons looked on.

Wilmer Stultz, pilot of the "Friendship," was Gordon's best man; Mrs. Stultz was matron of honor, and the bride's sister, Miss Mardie Bruce was maid of honor. The bride was attended by four former classmates of Miss Earhart. The mother of the bride also was a member of the bridal party.

The jazz band which played the wedding march broke into a jazz melody after the ceremony and the crowd resumed dancing. The wedding service was radiocast.

PLAN OCEAN FLIGHT.

A rumor was broadcast that the Gordons intend to be the first married couple to fly the Atlantic. Another prediction, substantiated, was that Miss Earhart and her flying companions would tour the east by air, leaving Chicago in a mail plane at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The Friendship crew today hoped to do considerable flying in and around Chicago. A testimonial dinner was scheduled for tonight by representatives of the organized clubwomen of the city.

PSHAW! PLANE CRASH IS TAME FOR GOVERNOR!

Hartford, July 21 (AP)—There was no thrill in the airplane collision at the new airport of the 43d Division air service in Groton to Governor John T. Trumbull, the "Flying Governor" said today.

"It's all in the day's work—part of the job," he said, when asked if his narrow escape from serious injury marked an outstanding incident in his career as an air pilot.

The Governor escaped with minor bruises, despite the fact that his plane turned end-over-end after it crashed into the other plane.

"As a matter of fact, I got no real scare or thrill out of the affair at all," he said.

A board of inquiry did not fix responsibility for the accident.

The other planes was piloted by Lieut. Lanco of the 118th Observation Squadron. The two planes came together at the moment of landing. Col. J. W. Gibson, who was with the Governor, and a mechanician were injured slightly.

SEEK FULLER'S AID IN DEDHAM SCHOOL ROW

In a petition from mothers and fathers of 600 school children, Governor Fuller was today asked to take a hand in the controversy in Dedham over the ousting of Thomas S. Foley, for nine years principal of the Avery and Quincy schools, by the school committee.

They ask that the governor urge the Legislature to amend the law in conformity with the statute now governing the Boston school committee, under which a school teacher is allowed a public hearing when charges are brought.

Friends of Foley claim the real reason for his removal was ill feeling between him and Dr. F. E. Grant, chairman of the Dedham school board.

A petition has been filed with the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus to declare the vote of the board void and to compel the reinstatement of Foley.

In their appeal to the governor, the petitioners declare: "Teachers will continue to live in fear and tremble when political pirates hold sway."

On behalf of the fathers and mothers, the petition is signed by Mrs. Margaret McKenna and Mrs. Mary Coyne of the defense committee and by Frank W. Starr and Walter Parker, treasurer and vice-president, respectively, of the Avery and Quincy Alumni.

"BIG CHIEF" SOCALEXIS VICTIM OF PICKPOCKET

Once more history has repeated itself, and a Redskin has been despoiled by white men. It happened in North Station, the victim being Frank Socalexis of the Penobscot tribe of Oldtown, Me., father of Andy Socalexis, former famous Marathon runner and brother of the onetime big league baseball star. Socalexis came to Boston with $90 to buy a horse for farm work. Two pickpockets worked the josie on him, and later, when in a restaurant, he sought money to pay the check, the Indian discovered his pocketbook was gone. He roamed the streets all night, friendless and penniless, and today told his troubles to Officer William Murphy, on traffic duty in Pemberton Square. Murphy prompt-ly loaned Socalexis enough money to last until he hears from his family

Girl Fries Egg on Capitol Steps by Means of Sun

Washington, July 21—Mildred Mercier astonished hundreds of witnesses when she fried an egg on the steps of the Capitol with only Old Sol as accessory, and then ate the egg.

Owing to the intense heat which made itself manifest in the early morning the thousands employed in the executive departments were given early release from their duties.

Some were excused at noon and others at 1 o'clock. The official temperature ranged from a minimum of 75 at 6 a. m., to a maximum of 95 at 4 o'clock.

PADLOCK BARS IN NIGHT CLUBS

New York, July 21 (INS)—Government operatives again visited Broadway's palaces of pleasure and entertainment early today, but instead of the old padlock procedures which caused proprietors to move to other quarters, service bars only were padlocked.

The padlocking of bars also included an injunction against the sale of liquors. The places visited will be permitted to remain open, at least temporarily, for the service of food and continuance of their programs of entertainment, but the service bars are tabooed.

At least eight well-known establishments in the "brightlight district" fell victim to the attack.

In addition to the padlocking proceedings and injunctions, summonses and complaints were issued in some of the places.

Among the clubs padlocked are the Melody, Peter's Blue Hour, the Cramp, and the Mimic Club and Hagi's restaurant.

Accused of Larceny

Charged with larceny of carpentry tools, John W. Scott, 22, of Fenbroke st., South End, was arrested in Blue Hill ave., Dorchester, by Officer Joseph Maloney.

GIRL WHO CAST ACID IN MAN'S FACE FREED

"I lost control of myself and threw acid in his face because he jilted me," said Miss Agnes J. Wells of Montgomery st., Cambridge, in Waltham district court today when she appeared on a charge of assault with intent to maim 39-year-old Willard Dewar of California st., Watertown.

She was found not guilty by Judge Hannon who said her mental condition at the time was such she did not know what she was doing.

"I went to Dewar's house intending to drink the acid and commit suicide," said Miss Wells. "When I spoke to him he laughed at me, and I could not control myself. His jeering laughter was what caused me to throw the acid in his face.

"Two weeks before that I drank acid to kill myself, but it wasn't strong enough and so I recovered after treatment at Waltham Hospital. I intended to make a second suicide attempt if Willard refused to make up with me."

Dewar's face was severely scarred when he appeared in court today.

ONE HOUR A DAY FOR LIFE IN SOLITARY CELL

Chicago July 21 (AP)—For one hour each day during the rest of his life Asaf Hollck must contemplate in solitary confinement in the penitentiary his crime of murdering Anthony Banas, butcher, during a robbery nearly two years ago.

A jury today found Hollck guilty of the murder and sentenced him to life imprisonment. The court ruled that he must spend one hour each day in solitary confinement.

Hollck told the court he would have preferred the death sentence.

LET CONTRACT TO REPAIR RESERVOIR AT REVERE

A $25,000 contract for repairs and enlargement of Revere reservoir, water supply of the city, was awarded today by Mayor John E. Walsh in a contract calling for completion within 40 days.

The act follows an overflow two weeks ago and a series of leaks in the last few years. A. G. Tomasello & Son, Inc., of Boston, was awarded the contract with a bid of $23,[illegible] reservoir will have capacity of seven feet higher than at present.

Whelan's requiem mass was sung, the organist being Miss Bertha Sherrisrro, the soprano Miss Lucille Campbell and the baritone, Thomas E. Cronin. Burial was at St. Joseph's cemetery.

The bearers were Daniel W. Garnett, Samuel and John Johnson, James F. O'Connell, Frederick W. Eisenman, Henry Holder and Cornelius H. Cronin. The ushers were John Cronin, Edmund T. Collins, Carl Pickhardt and Bernard Wiseman.

6 BLASTS WRECK STILL RAIDED BY DRY AGENTS

Philadelphia, July 21 (AP)—Six explosions in rapid succession destroyed an illicit distilling plant, its new equipment and mash valued by prohibition officials at $75,000 at 2 o'clock this morning. Five men were severely burned.

The blasts followed a raid by the prohibition forces on an old cooperage shop. Negro workmen dismantling the plant, under the direction of Federal agent Shepherd, were moving alcohol cans, and one of these is believed to have come in contact with a live wire.

LEE SELECTMEN THANK FULLER FOR PROMPT AID

Gov. Fuller today received a letter of thanks for his prompt aid to the epidemic stricken town of Lee from the selectmen of that community. The selectmen added a word of praise for the way Public Health Commissioner George H. Ernst directed the relief work and especially commended the work of Dr. Leland M. Beach. Chester S. OLYMPIC COACH DISLIKES TRACK

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach U. S. Olympic Team

Amsterdam, July 21 (Special Cable)—The President Roosevelt docked at Amsterdam early and I am glad to say that every member of the team reported fit.

I have been to the stadium looking things over, and I must say that my first impression is one of disappointment. The Dutch committee have built fine stands, and structurally their stadium is fine in every respect; but the layout for the track and field events, in which we are chiefly interested, is far from perfect.

I do not hesitate to say here and now that, unless miracles happen in the next ten days, the Amsterdam Olympics are unlikely to go down in history for any remarkable records.

The running track is only half completed and not even a beginning has been made with the jumping pits. The first dirt track was laid in marshy soil and sank. It has had to be resurfaced, and experts took the job in hand only two days ago. It will not be surprising, therefore, if it is not firm and springy when the games open July 28.

The turf for the field events also is on the soft side, and, in view of the fact that it has not rained here for ten days, it is difficult to imagine that the ground will firm up sufficiently for the games.

However, experts are on the job and have assured me they will do everything in their power to make the Olympic part of the stadium to our liking.

I already have been asked to make suggestions for getting the track and turf exactly right; but, aside from the fact it is late in the day to give advice, the American team is merely one unit of many, and it is not our business to tell the experts their job, especially as they are so keen to have everything ready and in good shape and are rushing things these final days of preparation.

Some of our people loosened up at the training stadium today, and at 10 tomorrow morning they will begin the week's real work-out. We seem to be the first representative bunch to reach Amsterdam, but by the beginning of next week the teams of all competing nations will begin arriving.

Then there will be little room to spare in the old stadium which is being used for training purposes.

Bout Rained Out

New York, July 21 — Rain called the ten-round bout between King Tut, of Minneapolis, and Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

MR. BOSTON stepped into the Sporting Department and, just to be in fashion, maced Nick Flatley for a couple of tickets for Flagstead Day.

"I'm glad the gang is finally giving Flaggy a little recognition," said Mr. Boston. "He has been with the Sox since 1923 and has always given his best in the baseball line.

"Flaggy's career with the Red Sox reminds me a great deal of Walter Johnson's early days with Washington. When the 'Big Train' was firs blazing his way to fame, the Senators lost about as regularly as rent day rolls around.

"Johnson was their only winning bet. Despite the fact Washington was usually down in the cellar, Walter the Great gave everything he had in the pitching line.

"Flaggy has been much the same type of ball player. The standing of the Sox has never taken any of the fire out of his work.

"Johnson had the satisfaction of eventually seeing the Senators become world's champions. Maybe Fate will be equally kind to Flaggy. He deserves to get with a pennant winner right here in Boston."

THE fair young telephone operator called Mr. Boston and told him New York wanted to talk with him.

"How's all the sacred codfish up in Boston?" queried Jimmy Johnston who happens to be the manager of a million or so boxers as well as the right eye of Mayor Jimmy Walker.

"Just as ... ily as your Jimmy Walker," laughed Mr. Boston.

"I was just up to the Garden and they told me they had $500,000 in the box office for the Tunney-Heeney bout," went on Jimmy. "You can figure they have about one-fourth of that. The show isn't any too hot.

"There have not been any jams at the commission, no poison plots, no injunctions, no bombastic statements by the rival fighters. Everything has been as quiet as a tea party or a Sunday school picnic.

"Unless something pops up during the next few days the gross gate will be lucky to hit $1,000,000. When the Federal people and the State finish clipping taxes, the gate will be below $750,000."

MR. BOSTON asked Johnston whom he thought would win. "I don't think Tunney has any cinch," he shot back. "Tunney has been too inactive to retain his form. Heeney hasn't got the class of Sharkey, but he will keep plodding along and will give the champion a busy evening. Tunney at the best will probably only win on points."

SERGEANT EDDIE MACK, matchmaker for Tex Rickard's new Garden at the North Station, paraded into the office.

"I was up to Wamesit to take a peek at Jim Maloney, who is getting ready for Henry Lamar," said Mack. "Shamus is in fine condition and is determined to fight his way back to the Polo heights.

"I look for plenty of action when Maloney meets Lamar. It will be the old story of a fighter against a boxer, and this combination usually gives satisfaction. The winner of my elimination tournament will be in line for a big shot when the Garden opens. With this as an incentive, Maloney and Lamar should give everything they have in the fighting line Monday night."

GOLDEN WHEEL RACE TONIGHT

With any kind of a break in the weather the Revere cycle track will be packed to capacity tonight, when Nat Butler offers the famous Golden Wheel 50-mile motor paced race. Seven riders are listed to fight it out for the big prize and because of the caliber of the field fans feel confident that a new track record for the distance will be set up.

Frankie Keenan, the Revere boy, is a slight favorite to outride his six opponents.

Opposing Keenan in the race will be George Chapman, the Newark veteran, who has won the American title six times; Francesco Zucchetti, the Italian; Larry Gaffney, New York; Victor Hopkins, Iowa, title-holder two years ago; Rene Boogman, little Hollander, who has the use of only one of his arms, and Henri Wynsdau, Belgium.

Hopkins, after losing some of his form last year, has apparently found himself again and he will be the most dangerous opponent of the two favorites, Keenan and Chapman. Zucchetti and, in fact, all the starters should force things.

Fans will see the next American sprint champion in action for the first time this year when Avanti Martinetti battles Freddy Spencer and golden-haired Bobby Walthour, Jr., in a special sprint match of three heats.

Points will decide the winner. Martinetti, of course, has not won the crown yet, but he is so far in front in the race that it is practically conceded him.

Preliminary to these two races amateur and pro riders will compete in the usual shorter distance contests.

Hub Racers Break Speed Boat Marks

Portland, Me., July 21 (AP)—World water speed records were tottering today as noted drivers tore over the two and one-half-mile course in today's events of the Portland speed boat regatta.

With the morning races completed, Arthur Sutherland of Boston apparently stood as the highest point winner of yesterday's and today's events with a total of 2460 points. Sutherland took all the 1200 points in the amateur Class A outboard races and placed first in all three heats of the Class A free-for-all.

In the 3 Class free-for-all J. E. Wilkinson of Boston, in "Brrrrrr," skimmed the oval in 5:17 flat.

In the final action of the morning in the amateur class, M. K. Jackson traveled the distance in 6:41 with his Fairchild aero "Capt. Kidd."

Cleveland Must Accept Miljus

Pittsburgh, July 21 (AP)—The Cleveland Club of the American League must accept the services of John Miljus from the Pittsburgh National League Club at a transfer price of $16,500, and must assume the player's contract as of July 8, Commissioner Landis ruled today.

Gehrig Gives New Players a Hand

DEAR ROG—The thing that surprises me most about the present baseball season, in our league at least, is the number of young players who have come up and have stepped right into the battle and held up their end.

I guess most fans have been more than surprised at the showing of the St. Louis Browns. I know they've given me a big surprise. Back of the play of the Browns is the work of those two kids, Kress and Brannon, around short and second.

Not since Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri broke in has there been a pair come along that was anything like their equal. They're real ball players, Rog, and they have all the marks of real veterans right now.

A COUPLE of pitchers—Coffman and Crowder—have come through in great shape for the Browns, too. These two boys have been up before, but this is really their first year of real work.

Nor are these the only ones. The Cleveland club has Lind at second and Morgan and Langford in the outfield; the Washington club has Red Barnes, who is just about as sweet a kid with the stick as you'll find in long, long search. He can go and set 'em, too, with the best of the boys.

To my mind though the bet looking kid to come up in the American League this season is Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics. Here's a kid who's a natural hitter, strong as a bull, young, and capable of playing most any place you put him.

He's supposed to be a catcher, but Connie already has used him at first and third and he has come through great in each position.

What's more he loves to play ball—and you know Rog, that the first requirement of a real big leaguer is that he likes the game.

INCIDENTALLY Foxx is the only kid catcher to make the grade this year, Washington has a lad named Kenna who seems pretty good, but he isn't exactly a regular yet.

Seems to me that there's a real lack of young catchers these days. There aren't three clubs in the two major leagues that couldn't use another good catcher or two—yet there don't seem to be any on the market anywhere.

How do you account for that, Rog? Is it because the boys aren't going in for catching any more?

I see the Giants are making another bid for the pennant after a passing and slump. What a race that is you fellows are in, what a race!

Yours truly,

Lou Gehrig

Charles Eaton Captures Mass. Junior Golf Crown

DEFEATS REIDY BY 2 AND 1

New Champion Wins Thrilling Match for Crown at Unicorn Club

Charles S. Eaton of the Winchester Country club annexed the Mass. junior championship today at the Unicorn C. C. by defeating John K. Reidy of Green Hill Golf club, Worcester, 2 and 1.

Both Eaton and Reidy played some fine golf and at times were very brilliant. But, on the other hand, used poor judgment which had considerable to do with the final outcome of the match.

The new champion was guilty of two bad selections of clubs while his ball was in the rough. At the 10th hole he elected to play a wooden shot from the rough and failed to get any distance, resulting in his taking a seven and losing the hole.

Again at the 17th, where he was dormie two, he played a wooden shot when the situation called for an iron and again landed in a mess from where he failed to get home, and [illegible] missed him.

Also, Eaton had two three-put greens, he missed a short put on the 3rd to lose the hole to a four and repeated this performance at the 15th.

Going to the first hole, Reidy's drive caught the trap on the right of the fairway from where he made a fine shot to the left of the green Eaton, who was down in two, holed with his drive, pushed his second into the trap to the right from where he came out too cleanly, running over.

After Reidy had chipped dead to the cup, Eaton was short with his approach, leaving himself a 15-putter for a half but he missed it, got to hold off the Worcester boy.

Eaton won the hole with a three, which squared the match.

REIDY LOSES FIFTH.

Both drove fine balls down the fifth fairway, but Reidy pulled his mashy shot to the rough and failed to get close enough with his chip to get down with one put and lost the hole in a fine four.

He got a half at the sixth by jumping a dead stymie after Eaton had both taken four to get home.

Reidy was on nicely at the short seventh hole, Eaton cut across the hill and as the Worcester boy got long on two putts, his three was good for a win and again the match was even.

After the eighth had been halved with a [illegible] hole Eaton cut a shot on a down hill lie to get his ball.

Eaton picked up another hole at the ninth where he canned a fine putt for a birdie four.

The down going to the tenth Reidy passed up a beautiful opportunity to square the match when he lubbed two shots after a perfect drive after Eaton had missed his second.

EATON TAKES LEAD

Eaton put his third on sight feet beyond the cup and ran down a putt for a four to go two up.

The eleventh hole was halved with threes, Eaton laying a 30-footer dead for his putt and Reidy missing a 12-footer for a deuce.

Eaton nipped up the 12th hole in great style when he put his ball, his shot into the wood but the ball hit a tree and bounced back towards the tee into the rough. Eaton then just tried to play a wooden club and just got over the brow of the hill and won the hole with a five, cutting Eaton's lead to one up.

At the 13th Eaton was home with a great second shot, but Reidy pulled his into the rough to the left of the green and lost the hole to a four.

Reidy got a half at the 14th by virtue of a most spectacular second shot from the rough and then won the 15th when Eaton three-putted himself into a five.

REIDY SHORT AT 16TH

At the short 16th Reidy was just short of the green, with Eaton slightly to the left to the right of the cup.

Reidy was short with his chip, leaving himself a 14-footer which he missed, and Eaton won the hole with a three, making him dormie.

Eaton half topped his drive going to the 17th, and Reidy hooked his tee shot into the right of the fairway. Reidy played an iron short of the green and then chipped a beautiful shot, the ball running down the side of the hill into the deep rough, from where he did well to get to the edge of the green.

Reidy was off line in his approach, his ball stopping 20 feet to the left of the cup.

Chipping from the edge of the green, Eaton made his approach within a foot of the cup and almost stymied Reidy who missed his putt, giving Eaton the Massachusetts Junior Championship 2 and 1.

U. S. Double Team Defeats Italians

which decided the final round, from Baron de Morpurgo and G. Gaslini, in the same straight-set style that featured America's singles victories yesterday. The scores of today's match were 6—3, 6—1, 6—3.

The simplicity of the American victory would have been somewhat startling had it not been that it was almost ordained by the ease of their triumphs in the singles 24 hours earlier.

Even with Tilden leading the charge against them, the Italians had been expected to furnish stern opposition. But, with Tilden declared out on a technicality that found only disfavor with his teammates, the Americans became fit by inspired and brushed all opposition aside in their ruthless desire to win and obtain satisfaction for the fate of their defender.

Few victories have been so easily gained in an interzone final. In fact, a three-match triumph without the loss of a set and the fact that only one of these sets were carried into extra games may constitute an interzone record.

The performance, greeted heartily by a small gallery, sent the Americans into the challenge round with France next week with heightened hopes of making more than a creditable showing.

ITALIANS WEAK.

So obvious was their superiority today that the Italian pair could flash only a few feeble rallies at rare intervals, one of these coming in the first set when they won the seventh and eighth games on superior steadiness, only to fall into forced errors and lose the ninth and set at 6—3.

It virtually was their only feature of the match, as the next two sets were reeled off by Hennessey and Tilden with the precision of masters, Italy taking only three games in the last 15 played.

The total point score clearly indicated the respective merits of the opposing pairs, Hennessey and Lott accrecating 85 points to 59 for De Morpurgo and Gaslini.

The latter, previously a dominant figure in International competition, was the monumental failure of this match and this tournament. He was almost pitifully weak in his returns today, netting so often that the keen Americans often centered their attack on his service instead of tossing a court, regarded as their original objective.

BOTH ITALIANS OFF FORM.

The baron's trouble was that he couldn't get the ball over the net while Gaslini pursued in driving out of court.

So easy was the prospect of conquest in the first set that Hennessey and Lott played matters safe, but they speeded up in the next two and left the Italians no chance for a possible comeback.

Late in the third set, a disputed "out," called in favor of the American side, caused Hennessey to net the next point purposely. But even then Italy was unable to take advantage of the opening.

The inspiration, apparently produced by the overnight disqualification of their captain and leader, Bill Tilden, still was a noticeable feature of the Americans' play today. They still reeled off point after point in their two first sets so rapidly that the Italians seldom got their bearings and then only for brief flashes. Seemingly, they realized they were up against a superior force, for their usual dash and fire was missing.

ITALIANS RALLY

However, they did rally momentarily with the score 5—1 against them in the first set and carried the seventh and eighth games through superior volleying and steadiness. But the baron's constant netting and Gaslini's overdriving exacted their inevitable toll, the American pair taking the ninth game for the set.

The play was uniformly slow, both teams keeping the ball high.

Lott and Hennessey, pressing their advantage, speeded up noticeably in the second set, executing beautiful placements and volleying like a pair inspired. They took the net at every opportunity and defied the Italians to pass them as they volleyed into the open court and chased their opponents from the line.

Baron de Morpurgo was the outstanding disappointment of the set, the Italian ace failing to keep the form that had made him a notable figure in international competition. Both in steadiness and brilliancy, Lott was the outstanding figure on the courts today, although Hennessey was little, if anything, his inferior in accuracy.

Lott, however, was the only man in the match to get a service ace, scoring two of them, while his 13 placements far exceeded the totals of the others. He made 21 errors to 29 for Hennessey, but committed two double faults to Johnny's one.

The baron was the worst offender of the two teams, making 38 errors and being charged with three double faults.

The complete strokes analysis for three sets follows:

	p.	n.	as.	pl.	df.
Lott	11	9	2	12	2
Hennessey	11	11	0	7	1
De Morpurgo	7	18	0	8	3
Gaslini	7	7	0	6	1

U. S. L. T. A. Has Heard No Word From Pres. Coliom

New York, July 21 (AP)—The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association has not yet received word from Samuel H. Coliom, its president, now in Paris, of any intention on his part of nominating William T. Tilden for the Davis Cup challenge round as reported from Paris, it was announced at the offices of the association today.

MALONEY IS AT 197 POUNDS

The honor of participating in the opening boxing show of the New Boston Madison Square Garden on November 2 looms up for the winner of the heavyweight battle between "Dynamite Jim" Maloney of South Boston and Henry Lamar, former University of Virginia all-round athlete, at Braves Field next Monday night.

Promoter Eddie Mack of the Arconne A. A., who recently signed as matchmaker of the new Hub athletic organization, has virtually promised Joe Lohman at Monday's bout a place on the card for the opening show of the Garden. A heavyweight match to open the magnificent boxin, coliseum is almost assured at this time and with this added incentive, the contest between Maloney and Lamar is expected to develop into one of the greatest ring duels in the history of the game in the city.

"Dynamite Jim" is eager to land the plum at the new Garden and for this reason it is doubtful if ever trained more faithfully for a bout in his entire career.

In the second big-under, Nat Filipo of New York clashes with Joe Agosta, lightweight champion of Rhode Island in the six-round bouts. Jimmy Anania White of the North End meets Johnny Lurn of Providence, and Phil Flanagan of Malden takes on Young Granberg of Worcester. In a six-rounder, Fr[illegible] O'Leary of South Boston meets Tony Magna of the North End.

In two four-rounders, Ric Roy Burlap of Westerly, R. I., faces Joe Cabana, Cape Cod, and Leo Morgan of Waltham meets Eddie Daley, Charlestown.

Farrell and Armour Now on Even Terms

New York, July 21 (INS)—Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell are all square today. Last month Farrell captured the United States open title which the Hills Scotch golfer won in 1927, and yesterday Tommy retaliated by grabbing the Metropolitan open title, won by Farrell last year. Armour's 278 for 72 holes of play over the Hackensack Country club courses at Westfield, N. J., tied the record for the event.

Boston Clergy's Boyhood

Dr. Robert Watson of First Presbyterian Church.

PIONEER LIFE DEVELOPED CHARACTER

Boyhood of Dr. Robert Watson, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, and president of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches.

In a wild forest land where woodlands stretched miles and miles in all directions; in a region new to civilization a boy of 12 was leading a lumber wagon from a pile of boards by a mill. The mare, nervous and continually uneasy was pacing the earth, and saying with all the eloquence a dumb mother could display that she wanted to get back to the log cabin near which was her young colt. She was with the boy trying to haul as heavy a load as the boy could put on, but he was unreasonably slow.

When the load did start all went well for a time until the long downhill stretch was reached, and then a board or two slipped beyond the rest and touched the mare. That was the signal for the start of no one any boy could ever hope for. Tearing down the steep hill went mare, boy and lumber until it looked as though all would be wrecked in some deep gully. With great effort the boy pulled the horse up a hanking with such a jerk that he himself felt between the wagon and the wheel and lost hold of the reins. The mare feeling herself free started again with redoubled speed, while the boy screaming for help was ground as between two mill wheels.

READ WHILE GETTING WELL

Nearly a year after that the boy "Robbie" Wat was talking about for the first time without crutches, and in his mind memory of a full pain, of a splintered ankle, and a surgical operation without ether had almost been obliterated.

"After the pain was over I had the time of my life" exposed Dr. Robert Watson, "I read everything I could lay my hands on." A years reading to that boy proved almost as good as a college education, and helped fit to his university training later on.

Robert had come with his father, and many brothers and sisters, and with his mother from Aberdeen, Scotland, to this New Brunswick wilderness. The government had given the family a log cabin, 100 acres of land, and enough household utensils to make it possible to keep house in the new manner.

From the day they arrived in that place with no roads, no school houses, no neighbors, but with millions of trees in all directions Robert Watson never kn w what it was to play.

His father, who went away for two weeks at a time to work on roads, gave one explicit direction to eight-year-old Robert, to cut down one tree every day. The boy was given a new ax and taught the science of felling a tree and making it to tumble where desired.

BECAME LEADING CITIZENS

Soon the Watson family became the leading citizens of that frontier settlement, and Robert not only cut trees, but he ploughed at ten, took occasional charge of the Watson store, gave out mail from the post office of which father Watson was postmaster. His mother became the midwife for the entire region, and but three times does Robert remember of a physician coming to the settlement.

The virgin forest is no place for indoor schooling and the boy got scarcely three months during the year, but when he did go he always stood second in the class. the first place being held by an attractive Miss Mullins, whom Robert did not try too hard to replace.

The fact is a company of sturdy Scotch people had crossed the Atlantic to make their homes in a wilderness looked to the more cultured and better educated Watsons for nearly everything soon the father felt the need for religious life and training, and he became an ordained Presbyterian elder, and went about the country as an itinerant preacher with a salary of $25 a month. There was no money in the settlement and most bills were paid by labor, if paid at all. The store became a liability rather than a source of profit, and therefore the Watsons were not much better off financially than their neighbors who had nothing.

From the very first young Rob showed his Scotch temper and determination. One morning the scholars at the school played a trick on "that smart Watson boy." They determined to make the teacher, an absentminded elderly gentleman, believe that Robert missed the farm work, hauling logs, and also belonged at the foot of the class The master couldn't remember any thing, and Robert denied loudly that he had failed in anything. The rest of the pupils, however, stuck to their point, until the dominie thought they must be right and told Rob to go to the foot. But young Watson refused. Whereupon the schoolmaster went out to cut a switch with which to enforce discipline. When he returned Robert was half-way home. Next day the boy was back again, but because he had been absent he was rightfully at the foot. Within two days, however, he was back by the side of Miss Mullins.

RAM AND BOY HAVE BLOWS.

Possibilities there are that this lad who had no play hours obtained his fun now and again in bits of mischief, such as tying his cousin's necktie too tight and then standing off with a grin while a frantic youth tried to unchoke himself. Then there was the old and belligerent ram whom Robert delighted in bailing. There was a feud between the two which finally cost the boy his leg, if not his life.

Robert had just begun to walk in the yard on his crutches after his long siege of getting well from a splintered ankle, when the old ram spied him and came for him as a Twentieth Century Limited. Young Watson saw his danger and knew that a blow upon his injured leg might undo the work of a year. He quickly mounted a nearby fence and met the oncoming rain with a sound crack on the nose with his crutch. A second advance was met in the same way, and when the crutch descended for the third time its head flew off and so frightened the brute that he turned and fled in terror.

Religion was always a topic of interest for young Watson, and he would discuss points of doctrine with his father who was less restrictive than his son. His father had in fact joined the Congregational church in Scotland and had inherited liberal ideas.

PLANNED FOR MINISTRY

"I scarcely remember a time," said the doctor, "when I did not have the idea that some day I would be a minister. It was in my blood to belong to the kirk."

When one knows how Dr. Watson works the year through without any vacation, and realizes how well he is in the face of innumerable duties in his church, in the community, and with the Federation of Churches, the answer must be sought in that New Brunswick frontier life, chopping a tree a day, ploughing fields half filled with stumps, taking care of the farm horses, hauling logs, then planting and harvesting grain, etc. At fourteen he could lead the men in the swinging ax, and could handle his grain bags with the best of them.

Back of his physical health was an absorbing interest in books, all books. And on a visit to his church study any day where shelves, chairs and desks are piled with latest books, will show how that love has stuck to him.

Fine sturdy religious parents helped, of course, in directing this lover of books toward the church, and a university training at Princeton as preparation for the work ahead.

The story next week will be of the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, D. D., minister of the Dudley Street Baptist Church.

RABBI WISE QUOTES FROM CONSTITUTION

In a recent sermon Rabbi Stephen S Wise of the Free Synagogue of New York City discussed frankly present political and religious issues. He criticized a certain editor of a religious paper who would bar any representative of the Catholic faith from becoming president of the United States. The rabbi gave no hint as to his preference for president in the present campaign and confined himself to dealing with the rights of all religionists. He said in part:

"I can think of no more fitting way of beginning the consideration of the problem we have set ourselves than by reading Article VI, Section 3, of the Constitution of the United States, which reads: 'no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.' Truly it may be said that this is as broad and clear and sweeping as to be unmistakable, from any point of view.

"And thus has the law been interpreted throughout the century and more of our history. Whenever a law has been enacted which has been subversive of this section of an article of the Constitution of the United States, such law or enactment has been declared to be null and void by the Supreme Court of the United States, as in the recent Oregon school case.

"If any man or group of men however numerous, were to propose a religious test as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, such a proposal would, if it reached the Supreme Court, be pronounced as violative of the Constitution.

"Just because there is no conjuring of state and church in our country, it is the business of the organized religious forces within the republic to keep the state free from any invasion of that spirit that reverses the several integrities of church and state.

I recall to you the circumstance that in the year 1908 there was nominated for the Presidency one of the finest servants of the nation in his generation, who had, prior to that time, served as a judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals, Governor-General of the Philippines and Secretary of War. This man, William Howard Taft, was a member and a lay-leader of the Unitarian Church. Theology, occupied some of the highest offices in the land prior to the year of his nomination for the Presidency, murmurings and mutterings arose in certain orthodox so-called Christian circles touching the question whether this Unitarian could be trusted as President, and the rumblings were heard, for the most part, in that section of the county in which today it is proposed to deny the spirit while affirming the letter of the Constitution."

SPECIAL DUET AT ST. PAUL'S SERVICE

At St. Paul's Cathedral, Sunday evening, Dr. D Crosby Greene and his daughter, Miss Marion Greene will sing "Love Divine," a soprano and tenor duet, from Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus."

The subject of Dr. Sullivan's sermon at the 11 o'clock service will be "An Allegory of a Soul in a Crowded Place." At the evening service Dr. Sullivan will preach on "Sir Valiant—A Pilgrim" The morning service is broadcast by WNAC.

Young People's Chorus

Hymns by Rev. J. Wilbur Vesta, pastor. The superintendent of the Sunday school, R. L. Lowell, is doing the work with his young people's chorus. They furnish special musical selections for the Sunday evening services. Assisted under Mr. Lovell's direction, they gave the beautiful pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross," which makes a most impressive and effective service. When it was given at the Berwick ble church a year ago, two of the candidates for baptism said it helped them to make their decision for Christ. It is a wonderful pageant for any church, large or small.

RICH PROFITS REAPED BY QUINCY CHURCH

Deacons, financial boards, trustees, the Rev. Erio Lindh, a large congregation of men and women of the new Congregational Bethany Church, Quincy, are none of them speculators, plungers in the stock market, nor have they had any reputation as being especially shrewd investors. All of which goes to show fortune is fitful when consideration is taken of what happened recently to this religious group, building a half million dolar church.

When church people start out to raise four or five hundred thousand dollars in these days, when critics say religious interest is waning, out out for themselves a Herculean task. A church built on faith and a large mortgage may or may not help the ultimate cause of religion. Faith, however, often gets unexpected rewards. The new Bethany needed a large sum of money, and those entrusted with the duty of raising the funds were looking forward with hungry eyes for imposing donations.

Fifty thousand dollars would be quite acceptable; would, in fact, bring a rainbow to hundreds of parish hearts. Where were $50,000 to come from? No wealthy citizen was in sight to produce such a sum, and the candle of faith was burning low when the unexpected happened

In the vault of a certain bank lay for some years sixty-five shares of stock in the Quincy Electric Light Company. Just what they were worth no one knew exactly, and what they cost originally few members of the church could say.

Those shares in all five cost $50 or $160, but as they were a gift to the church by a generous contributor no valuation was asked, and the treasurer of the church counted them in a sense amounting to from four to seven thousand dollars. Then it was that lightning struck, or that bright idea hit upon the new Bethany steeple, with an unheard of leap in the value of stock.

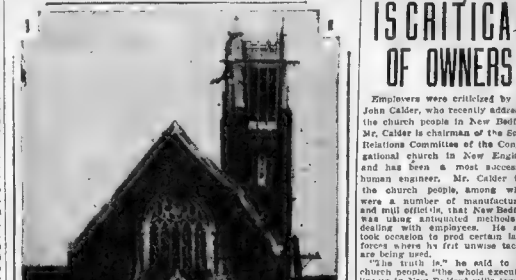
The Quincy Electric Company, a super power people who would like to spread light, educational and otherwise, over the United States decided those Quincy shares were worth $90 each.

The deacons, the trustees and Parson Lindh were called together and after a brief exchange of opinion decided to accept $58,500 for their shares in the Quincy Light Company. And it did so. Not long after the Rev. Erio Lindh admitted yesterday up to put a freshly written $6000 check in his clerical pocket. Interested parishioners who had given their mite to the building fund happened to hold a few shares of their own account, and consequently could well afford to contribute each one of five hundred or several thousand for the early completion of their beloved Bethany. Result is sunny at Bethany and the church is nearly completed.

Small difficulties now begin to disappear and preparations are already under way for a grand dedication in the fall.

There has been, and still is, an interesting controversy centered about four acres, ugly, grotesque aaggolies leaping forth from the four corners of the tower. These lobules have the claws of a griffin, and teeth that can be spotted two blocks away. Old world churches have architectural eyes, nor have they any difficulty in finding cherubs on the cathedrals of Europe. And even the middle ages did delight to represent, in stone, such cherubs, they constructed them for two definite purposes, to act as drains for the water, and as easy and natural exits for imps, devils, and obnoxious spirits driven from the House of God. Inspection of the Bethany monsters reveals no drainage through the mouths although a canal for rain water and as for evil spirits climbing the many stens and leaving ladders for others to be said out in the true historical manner there is nothing to it, unless imps and devils are utter climbers than the photographer who trembled his way up to the dizzy heights to get a snap at these impostor gargoyles. However, it looks now as though the carved creatures must stay where they are until time wears them down and crumbles the tower.

QUINCY'S NEW CHURCH



The new Bethany Church when entirely completed and furnished will have cost a half million dollars. The native semi-faced granite gives a rich brown effect, and the beautiful tower is a perpetual joy to those who look for beauty of line, harmony and appropriate design. It stands on a corner with the new high school flanking it on the west, and the Crane Library on the south.

Coming Church Events

The notable Catholic feast day of St. Anne will be celebrated next Thursday. There are shrines in New England where the records show remarkable cures. JOASH CHEST PLAN WILL BE INSTITUTED TOMORROW

The Rev. E. K. Nichols of St. Paul's A. M. E. Church, Cambridge, where a heroic effort is being made to clear off mortgages and indebtedness, has instituted the "Joash Chest" plan. A strong box or chest, donated by the W. M. Berry Company, will be brought every fourth Sunday of the month and placed where church members and others wishing to help may deposit their contributions. Two dollars is the stipulated sum, although smaller amounts will not be turned away, says Pastor Nichols. Tomorrow at morning and evening services the Rev. W. H. Jones will preach. The chest will appear for the first time.

JOHN CALDER IS CRITICAL OF OWNERS

Employers were criticized by Mr. John Calder, who recently addressed the church people in New Bedford Mr. Calder is chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee of the Congregational church in New England, and has been a most successful human engineer. Mr. Calder tells the church people, among whom were a number of manufacturers and mill officials, that New Bedford was using antiquated methods in dealing with employees. He also took occasion to prod certain labor forces when he felt unwise tactics are being used.

"The truth is," he said to the church people, "the whole executive line-up in New Bedford mills toward labor needs to be humanized and liberalized quite apart from the economic issue of the hour, in some of your mills with no attempt at education for radical changes, with out adequate explanation or personality, what appears to the worker as a decided reduction in his status (wages) has been forcibly imposed on individuals and groups.

"One of the most striking differences in the textile industry in the north lower status of the supervisor in the esteem of the employer and employee alike compared with the status of the modern foreman in non-textile plants. Net leaders, not drivers, are imperative if an employer with democratic sympathies is to convey his sympathies to the rank and file.

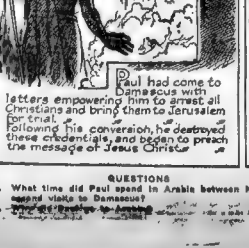
"Jesus taught that the supreme task is to arouse faith and hope, to generate life first. It will continuously create improved forms of human relations of social organization."

CLERGYMEN THREATENED FOR INDEPENDENT ACTION

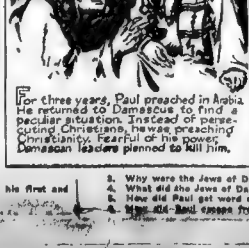
A clergyman, not too far away from Boston, persisted in connecting himself with many activities of a civic and social nature. He was public spirited and believed a church should care for the welfare of all the people as well as for a particular and isolated congregation.

He was warned by conservative members, but their warning went unheeded; and finally a deacon of the church reprimanded by the heads of "best families," but his passion for his community was greater than his love for his love for his own church. The financial board cut his salary. A resignation was sent in, and a boiling controversy ensued within the congregation. And now a unanimous call has been taken asking the offending clergyman to reconsider his resignation, for which he will stay on time to be a part of the life of his city.

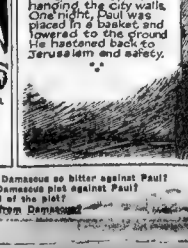
The story is not yet concluded, and an interested public waits the decision.



Paul had come to Damascus with letters empowering him to arrest all Christians and bring them to Jerusalem for trial. Following his conversion, he destroyed these credentials, and began to preach the message of Jesus Christ.



For three years, Paul preached in Arabia. He returned to Damascus to find a new ruler in power, persecuting Christians, he was preaching Christianity. Fearful of his power, Damascan leaders planned to kill him.



From that moment, the life of Paul was endangered. Wherever he went, spies dogged his footsteps. The city gates were guarded that he might not slip out. At last, his disciples found a house overhanging the city wall. One night, Paul was placed in a basket and lowered to the ground. He hastened back to Jerusalem and safety.

GOOD GIRL

By ROY L. FOLEY

Can a Girl Have Too Much Feminine Appeal?

CHAPTER 6

"My goodness, when does this party start?" Nancy was up to Ginger several hours later. Following Ginger's rather silly evening little watch, its face framed in sapphires, were pointing to five minutes after ten. The watch was on the dresser, a sprinkle of [illegible] across its face. Nancy [illegible] living in such [illegible] room could afford a watch.

"It's [illegible] yet," yawned Ginger, sitting [illegible] on the bed [illegible] satin dressing gown trimmed with [illegible] shifting her already [illegible] holding her [illegible] every little while to [illegible].

"I've been won't be here for a [illegible] yet. It always takes [illegible] to get up something to drink," she said, scrutinizing the touch of sunburn that she [illegible] was on her forearms.

"Boys, what boys?"

Nancy looked frightened.

Ginger laughed, and sat up. She had a pair of satin mules that matched her dressing gown across the toes.

"Why, THE boys, silly."

She stood [illegible], and put her arms around Nancy.

"I [illegible] repeated, "Jerry [illegible] And, for you, you'll love [illegible] he is, he's mad about [illegible] surprise you so [illegible] on the you on the [illegible] wild about [illegible] He just won't look at a [illegible] I [illegible] me out of [illegible] swearing him on a silver [illegible] (as well). You can bet your [illegible] on that.

"He [illegible] says he likes a girl to be sort of innocent, like, and he simply must be blonde. He says he likes to teach 'em things and then watch their eyes open.

"So just pretend you're a demure little golden head, sweet one. But willing to learn, understand. And [illegible] go over big. With a capital [illegible]

"He's a sweet kid."

Nancy felt as if [illegible] someone had struck her a blow.

"But G-Nacci, I couldn't think of—"

"Of course you can think of—whatever you were going to say. I mean, Vic's a sweet kid and I just wish I was blonde enough to make him love me the way he's going to [illegible] for you, my dear."

Ginger started putting on her dress. It was a powder blue, very cut and very tight and very revealing. All the sweet curves of her small body were accentuated by it.

The skirt didn't quite touch her ankles, which slippered, with extremely high French heels. She sat on a long chain of pearl beads, suspended at her waist, and then twisted them about so that a knot was at the back of her neck and the beads hung down her back.

It was a new way of wearing beads to Nancy. She thought it somewhat extreme. A few more applications of powder, another smear of carmine on her lips, and the [illegible] to a cupid's bow that [illegible] movie queen sigh with envy, and Ginger was ready to receive her callers.

She had timed herself almost to the minute.

There was a loud knock at the door, and then, without waiting for a response, it was flung open and there stood Jerry Stanley. His face was flushed even more than in the afternoon. Behind him was the man whom [illegible] Nancy knew [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

GOLDEN RULE AT WORK

By LUCY LOWELL.

A VERY great many of us indeed believe the golden rule an admirable measure of human relations and conduct, a fine, splendid thing to live by—for the other fellow.

It isn't that we don't wish to be square and even considerate, and most of us take it for granted that we are. But in the back of our heads somewhere is the notion that we ought to be a little lenient with our conduct as long as our heart is in the right place and that others should understand what really good fellows we are and not hold against us any trifle which doesn't look quite right.

Of course we don't always take this attitude toward the other fellow; we declare that he is old enough to know what he's doing and if he doesn't want folks to get wrong ideas about him he'd better watch his step.

And even those of us who do observe the golden rule rather closely as applied to our friends and acquaintances and business associates feel no special compulsion about doing unto others as we would be done by when it comes to other than individuals, corporations, the government, or still more impersonal social institutions.

Not just a rule to promote peace and good manners between individuals, but a higher law whose philosophy might bring perfection into life for the whole world—this is the golden rule.

We cannot, you and I, see that the golden rule is accepted and enforced far and wide by everybody. But we can accept it for ourselves and we do our bit toward enforcing it. And none can tell how far the good intent of one person will carry.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

CONSIDER, my Daughter, the double nature of Man.

For, verily, verily, every man is a study in black and white, and Janus, the two-faced, was not more inconsistent!

Behold, he seeketh always the ideal Woman—but stoppeth by the way to dally with the light and foolish woman.

He sigheth for a woman who will thrill and inspire him—but spendeth all his days with the women who amuse and flatter him.

* * *

He saith in his heart, "I admire only a Perfect Lady"; yet he pursueth the flamboyant flapper and playeth around with the rough-necks and wild women.

He dodgeth the woman whom he loveth, lest his heart become entangled—and backeth into the arms of the woman whom he doth NOT love, and is entangled before he suspects it.

He yearneth always to do big and magnificent things—but wasteth all his days doing foolish and trivial things.

He saith, "Tomorrow, I shall rise at dawn and WORK until sunset, and naught upon the earth nor in the heavens above the earth shall stop me!"

* * *

And behold, upon the morrow, the dawn cometh and goeth, and the afternoon findeth him upon the golf links.

* * *

He resolveth, each day, to be calm and serene and unmoved by trifles. Yet, alas! when his stenographer arriveth ten minutes late, she findeth him pacing the office in a brain storm. And when his wife summoneth him upon the telephone while he is in conference, she is met with a tempest of reproach.

* * *

He saith, "Today will I go upon a reducing diet!" And at breakfast he scorneth the tempting bacon and the innocent muffin. Yet, at high noon, he cryeth, "I am hungry as a wolf! Go to. I can no longer endure this strain." And his order is roast beef and potatoes and rice pudding!

How, then, shall any woman understand the man whom she loveth?

For today, yesterday and forever he is animated by his higher aspirations and his finer ideals. But all the days of his life he is ruled by his little weaknesses and LED by his impulses!

Can Jealous Petty Bosses Keep Brilliant Men Down?

By B. C. FORBES

New York, July 21—There is no money in manufacturing excuses. Yet it is among the most popular of industries. Nearly all of us indulge in it more or less.

Instead of shouldering responsibility, how tempting it often is to slide down under and cast the blame on somebody else. If employes knew how bosses detest such tactics, they would rather stand up and take their legitimate punishment.

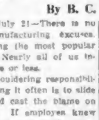
These observations are prompted by a letter which expresses the state of mind of far too many employes. After saying complimentary things about this column, the letter-writer says:



B. C. Forbes

"There is one subject I would like to see in print in view of the statement so often made that there are more big jobs than men to fill them. Has it ever occurred to you that there are many big men in the making whose careers are killed by some overlord superior to us across a ruthless warfare to crush the ambition that one may possess?

"Advantage is taken of their position and they bear down with everything at their command until eventually the other fellow gives up in despair. I do not mean by this that it is done by the real higher-ups, but by those in-between fellows who perhaps see in one a very capable man who is too able and efficient for their own comfort.

"Is such a man much different from our gangster who uses the rod' when competition sets in? The one kills the body, the other the soul."

First let us admit that there are many pin-headed, petty bosses who delight in browbeating those under them and who are jealous of any particularly bright subordinate giving promise of rising. Jealousy, indeed, is not confined to petty bosses or to any other one class, but it runs in many quarters from almost the top to the bottom. Let us admit, too, that it is far from easy for a capable worker to overcome the obstructions of a jealous or tyrannical superior.

But the man who cannot in time solve such a problem in one way or another is not entitled to regard himself as a "big man in the making."

If he were such as big as he thinks he is, if we were as supremely talented as he imagines, either his work would sooner or later make an impression on someone higher up, or, if this did not happen, the repressed one would move, confident that, although he might have to start rather low down, his wonderful ability and industry would compel recognition and advancement.

He isn't a truly big man who can't solve problems beyond the ability of ordinary mediocrities to solve.

"I know that I am a $10,000 a year man, but I haven't been able to find the right opening. Can you put me into touch with a $10,000 a year job? I know I can make good."

That is the plaint of many letters which come to the writer. They are near relatives of the letter quoted in this column today.

The answer, of course, is that he is not a $10,000 a year man who fails down in the very first results of a $10,000 a year man, namely, the ability to land a $10,000 a year job, to sell himself at his desired figure.

John D. Rockefeller once impressed upon me that the main trouble with a great many young men today is that they want other people to do things for them. "They want to be handed a share of the profits. The way to get a share of the profits is to save money, buy as much stock as possible in the business and then get a share in the profits that way," was his pronouncement. He emphasized that vital importance of self-reliance, of having the courage to strike out to develop your worth.

Self-pity blights millions of careers. An inferiority complex can be killed by an equally superior but not much of an emotion. A chronic whiner rarely is a winner. There is no healthy nourishment in nursing a grouch year after year. A man must either learn to get in with his superiors and others or get out. We have scant patience with the conceited fellow who is sure he is a world-beater, or who shivers at the thought of stepping out and taking a chance elsewhere. When he knows he is so good, he is content for ever to remain unstuffed.

If you have the right kind of ambition, nobody on earth can kill it but yourself.

TRADE ATTACHE HERE TO HELP ON PROBLEMS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Sproule Fouche, acting U. S. commercial attache at Bucharest, Rumania, is in Boston to offer suggestions as to how the sale of products of New England industries can be increased "over there." Mr. Fouche declares our goods are well and favorably known in the Balkan kingdom, and that it offers a pleasing present and potential market for New England products.

Among our products which already have a market in Rumania, Mr. Fouche says, are electric devices, slickers, automobile spare parts, industrial machinery. European manufacturers, according to Mr. Fouche, market and are making every possible effort to re-establish their prewar trade relations with Rumania. However, he explains, the superior quality of American goods is generally recognized by the Rumanian people, approximately 80 per cent of whom are peasants living in a primitive way. Manufacturing being but slightly developed in Rumania, the approximately 17,500,000 population of the country must, in a large measure, be supplied with manufactured articles from abroad.

Rumania has made great progress in economic rehabilitation during the end of the World War, asserts Mr. Fouche. Relations between American business men and Rumanian importers have been quite satisfactory, he finds, and the cases in which difficulties have arisen or suffered any loss have been very few.

American automobiles have taken Rumania by storm, the Commerce Department's Rumanian representative declares, and 82 per cent of the cars sold in Rumania during 1927 were of American origin. The sales of automobiles, spare parts and tires during the past year are estimated to have resulted in the payment of $4,500,000 to American manufacturers and 1928 sales are expected to exceed those of 1927 by about 20 per cent, he states. Mr. Fouche has been 16 years a bank president in Rome, Georgia.

Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of the New England Power Co., is not the first to be elected as president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce after a lapse of years, although he is, however, the second to do so in that honor. The first was the late James J. Storrow, who in 1909 resigned as president of the Chamber of Commerce to accept the Democratic mayoralty nomination. In 1913 Mr. Storrow was again chosen as the Chamber's chief.

Pepperell Mfg. Co's colored sheetings, first mention of production of which appeared in this column last October, have been increased since every successive month. The textile innovation, the result of a stylistic visit to Paris, has been widely copied by other American mills. Shares of these colored sheetings are now contributing a large proportion of Pepperell's earnings.

In 1927, every American farmer on the average made $157 more than he made in 1926. That's something, enough for the first payment on a new car.

But the average farmer in 1927 earned only $1290 in all, less than the salary of an underpaid chauffeur in the city.

The farmer takes care on the average of 275 acres, and he has to invest $15,446 to own the farm. No wonder farmers' sons go to the city.

TO MEMBER COMPANY EXECUTIVES:

I am certain you will be interested in the enclosed folder which it is being sent out by the Casualty Information Clearing House in Chicago to some thirty thousand agents throughout the country. Mr Henry Swift Ives, Secretary of the Casualty Information Clearing House, has informed the agents that his organization will furnish these folders free of charge in any quantities desired so that the agents may include one with each policy renewal or premium notice sent out by them. He estimates that there will be an ultimate circulation of may million copies.

Very truly yours,

A Message to Policyholders

EVERY insurance policyholder is a property owner, for every insurance policy is property, or represents property.

The property owner, however, often fails to heed the impulse to protect his own when it comes to his insurance policy. This is perhaps because he usually does not realize that his policy is a very tangible kind of property in itself.

In America there are more than 65,000,000 policyholders, not counting those having accident and fire insurance. They rule the Republic. They elect legislators and executives. They are the foundation of all political power. But despite all of this they often approve of economic and political policies directly aimed at undermining the property upon which insurance and not only represents but protects.

The present wide-spread agitation, largely manufactured by demagogues, for the political ownership and operation of steam railroads, electric light and power utilities and other so-called public utilities is a case in point.

By STOCK

POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY executives "will be interested," George F. Oxley, is sure, in the distribution of "a message to policy holders" he tells about in the above letter. Oxley, chief propagandist of the National Electric Light Association dominant Power Lobby organization, says the ultimate circulation of the message is estimated at many millions. The message tells policy holders they are wrong in approving public ownership of a public utility. "Messages" of this character were proposed at a national meeting of the light association a few months earlier, according to the Federal Trade Commission's record in its investigation of the so-called Power Trust.

POWER LOBBY RAPS HEARST PAPERS

(Copyright, 1926, Universal Service)

Washington, July 21—A new flood of propaganda loosed by the power lobby, according to direct Federal trade commission disclosures of its lobbying and its earlier propaganda in schools, colleges and newspapers, has been revealed.

In a weekly "digest of opinion" sent out by the thousands of copies to bankers, insurance executives, State utility propaganda directors, utility leaders, and others the lobby seeks to show that the press tends to vindicate its actions.

Coupled with this is a sustained attack on the Hearst newspapers. Fresh propaganda against the Boulder Dam project, and an attempt to "whitewash" the power groups in their distribution of hundreds of thousands of propaganda pamphlets in schools.

Each recent issue of the Digest alludes to newsy treatment of the investigation in the Hearst newspapers as "sensational." The "sensational" treatment is stated to consist in part of "photographic reproductions of letters and other exhibits"—the handiwork of the propagandists and taken by the commission from their files.

One article cited by the lobby as an instance of asserted increasingly favorable editorial opinion is a violent attack on the Trade Commission by Ernest Greenwood.

Greenwood already appears in the commission's files as having been paid $7192 by the power lobby. Five thousand dollars of this was for a book, "Aladdin, U. S. A.," to inform the public about the electrical industry. Another payment, according to the record, was for a survey of editorial opinion on the Boulder Dam project, subsequently used to assist that project while the lobby was fighting the Swing-Johnson bill at the last session of Congress.

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR UNITED DRUG MEETING

An all-star show, featuring two of the best known orchestras in the country and several headliners of the Keith circuit, will be staged by the management of the Hotel Copley-Plaza for those in attendance at the convention of the United Drug Company at its Silver Jubilee in Boston next week. In addition a pageant, featuring 36 ballet girls, depicting the growth of the company during its 25 years, will be staged.

The show will be given next Thursday night, the closing night of the convention, at the grand ball at the Copley-Plaza.

The Philadelphia Ramblers, fresh from their success at the $1,000,000 pier at Atlantic City and a tour of the country, will engage in a battle of music with Meyer Davis' Washington orchestra.

The program includes Neal and Brown, whiskers, the Three Hottentots, Dusky Dixie Steppers; Moran, Warner and Margy in college comedy; Senor Brothers and Sister in "What Next;" Foley and Leteur, crazy bits of nonsense; Brems, Fitz and Murphy Brothers, in "What Have You" and the Variety Sextette.

FORD INVITED TO INSPECT BIG ZEPPELIN

Berlin, July 21—Henry Ford, regarded around Germany as the savior of transportation, has been invited to make the trip to Lakehurst, N. J., to inspect Germany's new super-Zeppelin passenger and mail airship as the Count Zeppelin upon its arrival there after the transatlantic flight.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the dirigible, who was Ford's guest at Detroit, has written the motor manufacturer to come to Lakehurst to take a ride in the airship and examine Germany's latest and most modern contribution to air transportation.

Eckener is planning to fly a visit to Detroit with the Zeppelin but says he will not be able to land because there is neither shed nor mooring mast there.

Commanders Rosendahl and Fulton of the American navy and President Litchfield of the Goodyear Tire Co. and the Goodyear Zeppelin concern of Akron, Ohio, have reached Friedrichshafen and inspected the big super-airliner.

"A beautiful craft," Fulton said. "I wish I could stay and make the trip over."

Fulton said that he had to return to Washington, but that Rosendahl would remain and make the trip to Lakehurst in the Zeppln. The German Ministry of Posts is considering getting out a special stamp for mail to go on the airship to America. It is expected that the ship will take about a ton of letters.
